Under his direction the university pursues teaching, research, and creative excellence focused on the major challenges and questions of our time, as well as those central to the building of a sustainable environment and economy for Arizona. He has committed the university to global engagement, community engagement and to setting a new standard for public service.

Since he took office, ASU has marked a number of important milestones, including the establishment of major interdisciplinary research initiatives such as the Biodesign Institute; the Global Institute for Sustainability; and MacroTechnology Works, a program integrating science and technology for large-scale applications, including the Flexible Display Center, a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Army.

Under his direction ASU has initiated a dramatic research infrastructure expansion to create more than one million square feet of new research space, and has announced naming gifts endowing the W. P. Carey School of Business, the Ira A. Fulton School of Engineering, the Mary Lou Fulton School of Education and the Virginia

VICE PRESIDENT FOR ATHLETICS

Lisa Love was named Arizona State's Vice President for University Athletics on April 23, 2005.

At ASU, Love serves as the senior administrative officer of the university's athletic program, which features 12 women's and nine men's sports, including men's and women's basketball, men's and women's golf, swimming and diving, women's tennis, track/field and cross country; women's gymnastics, soccer, softball, volleyball, and water polo; baseball, wrestling and football.

On the strength of three national championships and eight total Top 10 national finishes this year, the ASU athletics department finished fourth in the 2007-08 U.S. Sports Academy Director's Cup standings, a national ranking of all Division IA institutions.

Love is responsible for the management and development of one of the finest and most comprehensive athletic physical plants in the nation at ASU, playing host to nearly 1 million patrons each year. ASU's athletic staff includes more than 150 full and part-time coaches and administrative and support personnel who provide services to about 500 student-athletes.

Love chaired the Pac-10 Conference's Athletic Director's Revenue Sharing Committee in 2006-07 and actively participates in both Teach for America and Read for America, which requires teaching and reading to seventh and eighth-graders at C.J. Jorgensen School and Copper King Elementary School.

In the short time she has presided over the affairs of ASU Athletics, Love has already established herself as one of the rising administrators in the country.

Love's ability to lead was evident right from the start. She had been on the job a little more than two months (officially began July 1, 2005) when ASU had to move its scheduled football game with LSU from Baton Rouge, La., to Tempe – in less than a week's time – because of the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina in the state of Louisiana. In the end, $1 million was raised through ticket sales from the game to assist with the Hurricane relief effort.

One of only six female athletic directors out of 119 at Division I Schools with football, Love has taken important steps since her appointment to ensure that ASU remains one of the premier athletic programs in the country. She has extended the contracts of head women's basketball coach Charli Turner Thorne (two Pac-10 Championships, five NCAA Tournament appearances and an Elite Eight appearance in 2007); head baseball coach Pat Murphy (five top 12 finishes in the last 11 years and two College World Series appearances); head women's tennis coach Sheila McInerney and women's golf coach Melissa Luellen.

In addition, Love was praised around the country for the hiring of veteran football coach Dennis Erickson, the 11th-winningest active coach in the nation and two-time national champion who helped ASU fashion a 10-3 record and a Pac-10 co-championship in 2007. In addition, she hired North Carolina State's Herb Sendek (12 post-season appearances in 14 seasons as a head coach), who guided the ASU men's basketball program to its first 20-win season in five years in 2007-08. She also hired Kevin Boyd to coach the women's soccer program after leading California to eight NCAA appearances in 10 seasons and volleyball coach Jason Watson, who led BYU to the Elite Eight in 2007.

"In three short years, Lisa Love has made an impact that places her along side the great collegiate athletics leaders of our nation," Arizona State President Michael Crow said. "She has set the bar high, both for athletic and academic performance. She has demonstrated strategic skill in hiring, retaining and developing an exceptional athletic staff. Her vision and personal leadership skills are laying a foundation for sustained success."

Love came to ASU from the University of Southern California where she had been since 1989 as head women's volleyball coach (1989-98) and administrator (1991-2005). After leaving the coaching ranks following the 1998 season, Love devoted herself to administration full-time eventually ascending to the position of Senior Associate Athletic Director in 2002.

At USC Love handled the day-to-day supervision of eight sports and monitored all women's sports at the university. She was active in the athletic department's strategic planning, gender equity, civil rights and NCAA certification issues and she served on the NCAA Management Council. She also served two stints (1992 - 1993 and 2001 - 2002) as vice president of the Pacific-10 Conference.

As a coach, Love was a master teacher at the pinnacle of her profession. She compiled an impressive 404-171 as a college head coach for 17 seasons at Texas Arlington (199-78 from 1982-88) and USC (205-93 from 1989-98). At USC, she led the Trojans to nine NCAA tournament berths and eight finishes in the national Top 15. She was selected as the Pac-10 Co-Coach of the Year in 1997. She was national Coach of the Year in 1988 when Arlington went 30-4 and fell one win shy of the Final Four.

Love served as president of the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA) from 1997-98 and as the chair of the NCAA Division I Volleyball Committee. She worked on the AVCA All-America committee from 1987-89 and was a legislative representative to the AVCA Board from 1992-94. In 2005, Love was inducted into the AVCA Hall of Fame.

WELLS FARGO ARENA ...

Wells Fargo Arena, one of college basketball's best arenas, has a capacity of 13,947. It has served as an NCAA Tournament site on five occasions, in 1975, '78, '80, '92 and '96.

Arizona State plays its home games in Wells Fargo Arena, one of the nation's finest college basketball arenas. The 13,947-seat arena has been the site of five NCAA tournaments, nine NIT games, a Pac-10 Tournament and many holiday tournaments.

In 1996, Wells Fargo Arena was the site of a 1996 NCAA West subregional. Previously, NCAA games were staged in 1975, '78, '80 and '92.

Completed in the spring of 1974 at the cost of $8 million, the arena is used for a variety of University-related activities in addition to Sun Devil basketball. Several of ASU's athletic teams compete in the arena, which also plays host to graduation exercises.

The structure is 400 feet long, 340 feet wide and six stories high. The structure contains offices and locker rooms for ASU basketball, along with space for weight training, a training room and an equipment room.

The inaugural game was played Dec. 3, 1974, against Whittier. The Sun Devils prevailed, 103-67, and would go on to win 20 consecutive games in their new home. That still stands as ASU's longest home winning streak.

When Arizona State edged Alabama, 97-94, in a 1975 NCAA tourney game, 14,733 fans crammed into the arena. That's still a record. Altogether, the capacity has been matched or surpassed on 15 occasions.

In the spring of 1989, ASU moved forward with plans to remodel the former football locker rooms in order to create a spacious, functional and first-class setting. The impetus for the basketball remodeling project came when the Sun Devil football team moved out of its locker rooms and into the new ICA Building located in Sun Devil Stadium in December of 1988.

The renovation plans involved two locker rooms. In one, the players have a locker and dressing room area. Twenty open-style, personal lockers line the wall. Adjacent to that room are showers and lavatory facilities.

Next to the locker area is a players' lounge with a video center for team meetings. The lounge also includes a ceiling-mounted stereo system, couches, tables, chalkboards, water fountains and a campus-only telephone.

The second locker room is for the coaching

ABOUT NED WULK COURT

ASU's floor has a cushioning effect of a maple flooring system designed to increase shock absorption.

At the heart of Ned Wulk Court is 17,460 square feet of an elaborate "Bio-Channel" maple footing system. Installed by Sun Country Floors, Inc. of Mesa, the floor offers shock absorbing properties to take ASU athletes to new heights. Underneath the maple flooring surface are load-distribution boards and sophisticated steel-encased sleeper with thousands of rubber pads that act much like an automobile shock absorber.

Sun Devil athletes benefit from a floor that provides uniformity and consistent ball bounce, almost doubles the shock absorption, thus reducing leg fatigue and the potential for injury.

Designed and manufactured by Cincinnati-based Robbins-Sports Surfaces, the state-of-the-art Bi-Channel design is used by many NBA training centers, including the Phoenix Suns practice facility at America West Arena.

Robbins, official sports flooring supplier to the 1996 Centennial Olympic Games in Atlanta, also supplied the original floor at the UAC, where the inaugural game was played Dec. 3, 1974 against Whittier.

SUN DEVIL

CLUB

To Wear the Maroon and Gold

To most of us, it's something we do without thinking when we're heading to the game. But for more than 550 ASU student-athletes, it means something much more. When all is said and done, a four-year letterman will have given over 1600 hours on the field of competition, 1600 hours in the weight room, 1776 hours in the classroom, and another 1600 hours in study hall. That's over 6500 hours of their college career they will have given for the opportunity to wear the Maroon and Gold.

They gladly make these sacrifices because they share in their hearts a burning desire to be champions. Not just champions on the field, but champions in the classroom and most importantly, champions in the game of life. For even after the final whistle has blown, these young men and women will always be Sun Devils.

Your gifts allow them the ability to wear the Maroon and Gold for only four seasons, but the lessons they learn will last a lifetime.

COACHING LEGEND NED WULK

SUN DEVIL COACHING LEGEND NED WULK
2003 Pac-10 Hall of Honor Inductee
Born: Aug. 14, 1920
Hometown: Madison, Wis.

• ASU named its floor in 1999 after Coach Ned Wulk, who was 406-272 (.599) at ASU from 1958-82. Wulk posted amazing success in Tempe, as he was 94-24 (.797) in home contests in the former University Activity Center.

• ASU won its first 20 games in the UAC from Dec. 3, 1974 through Jan. 10, 1976, which is still a building record. Three times Wulk's troops won 14 games in its home arena.

• In the 25 years Wulk coached at ASU, he had 17 winning seasons and led ASU to nine NCAA Tournaments and two National Invitational Tournaments. His teams were one game away from the Final Four three different times — 1961, 1963 and 1975.

• The most Sun Devil wins in a season is 26, which was achieved by Wulk's 1963 team, and his 1962 club won a school-record 18 straight. Also was ranked as high as third, best ranking in school history.

• Pac-10 runner-up twice in six seasons, and in the 16 years of play in the Western Athletic Conference, Wulk's team finished below fifth place only four times. In the five seasons that ASU was a member of the Border Conference under Wulk, the team finished at the top of the conference four times.

• Completed his 25th year at ASU with an upset-victory over undefeated, top-ranked and Pac-10 champion Oregon State in March of 1981.

• The 1979-80 season was one of Wulk's most prolific, as the Sun Devils finished 21-6, and second in the Pac-10 at 15-3, with a national top-20 ranking in both wire service polls and an NCAA Tournament berth. Wulk was selected as the Pac-10 Coach of the Year.
