

A top-20 recruiting class. Two McDonald's All-Americans.

A new practice facility on the way. A diverse plan for a winning program that is constantly being updated with fresh ideas.

This is what the Sun Devil family had in mind when Arizona State began its search for a head basket ball coach in the spring of 2006. Vice President of Athletics Lisa Lovereceived plenty of suggestions from friends, donors, media, students, staff and fans on what it would take for the ASU program to become a consistent challenger in the Pac-10. Everyone had an opinion and a thought.

Make sure he's a great recruiter. Get a veteran. Get someone young. Get someone hungry.

Incredibly,Lovefoundallthatandmoreinone man: Herb Sendek.

Just look at the facts:

*Coach Sendek is 262-180 (.592) in 14 seasons as head coach at Miami (Ohio), North Carolina State and Arizona State, and was selected Coach of the Year in both the Mid-Americanand Atlantic Coast Conference. Hehas averaged 18.7 wins peryear, but when you toss in some history it becomes more impressive. NC State averaged just 11.6 wins in the five years prior to his arrival, while Miami had averaged less than 15 wins in the six years before him.

*Histeamshave been in post season play 12 of his 14 seasons, including a streak of five straight NCAA Tournaments at NC State from 2002-2006. How does that compare in the Pac-10? Think about this... only three schools can match that in the 29 seasons since ASU joined the loop in 1978-79. Three other schools made it three straight times, but the mini-streak stopped at four.

*He was selected as one of the Top 10 recruiters in the nation in a Sports Illustrated poll as an assistant, and it now has rolled into a top-20 recruiting class that will be unveiled in the fall of 2007. His team will have two McDonald's All-Americans on the roster, a first in Sun Devil history. He plucked new comers from Arizona, California, Latvia, Washington and Pennsylvania.

*Hewasone of only three coaches who had NBA first-round picks in both the 2005 and 2006 drafts

*He has been on the coaching staff of two programs that reached the Final Four.

*Heisonly44yearsold,second-youngestin the Pac-10.

*Already he has identified the needs of the Sun Devil program and helped lands ignificant donations towards the future practice facility.

*Ofthe61 coaching changes in 2005-2006, only four coaches had more Division I wins than ASU's new man in charge.

*And, most importantly, he is still "hungry" which was evident last year when despite losing the top returning scorers from the previous summer in late July, he figured out a way to keep ayoung team that played three freshmen incredible amounts of minutes close in every game despite a string of agonizing closelosses. In the final ninegames of the regular season, ASU was outs cored by just 22 points, and 14 of its final 15 games were decided by six points or less.

Coach Sendektook the ASU postatatime when hewas ready for a new challenge. He had successfully rebuilt NC State after the program had suffered fivestraightlosing seasons. In 10 seasons, he took the Wolfpack tonine tournaments, including the NCAA tourney his final fiveyears. In those fives easons (2002-2006), only Duke had more ACC wins.

But through his 14-year head-coaching career, one that started at just 30 years young, the number the ASU fan started to comprehend and understand that is most important to the success of the Sun Devil program is very small.

Herb Sendek and his staff led NC State to its fifth straight NCAA Tournament in 2006 despite having no returners that averaged in double digits.

he is a relentless worker who spends time in airportswithhismagneticwhiteboarddrawing upplaysthatcangetJeffPendergraphopenoff the inbounds play under the hoop.

From 2,227 miles away, ASU got its man in Herb Sendek.

The Pittsburgh native has won 262 games in 14 seasons and has been a part of a Final Fourcoaching staffattwoschools with major basketballtraditions. Hewas named the 13th men's basketballcoach at Arizona Stateon April 3, 2006.

A 1985 graduate of Carnegie-Mellon (Pa.), Coach Sendekis 262-180 (.592) inhis 14 seasons as a head coach and was 191-132 (.591) at North Carolina State in 10 seasons. Hee arned Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year in 2003-04 and has taken adozente am stothe postseason. While competing in one of the nation's most intense conferences, he posted five 20-win seasons, including his final three. He also was named the Mid-American Conference Coach of the Year in 1994-95.

Yet some folks, when ASU made the hire, couldn't quite graspall the facts. One national recruiting service, when talking about the hire, said ASU did a great job because it took into account all the wins, years as head coach and NCAA appearances but questioned the "youth" of Sendekwhen it mentioned three other Pac-10 coaches who were "young coaches that might have more upside."

One small problem.

NoonecheckedhisbirthdateofFebruary22, 1963.

Heisyoungerthantwoofthethreecoaches mentioned.

No worries, that all was taken care of as the league became familiar with not only the coach, but the man and his background. Like how his team went to the Sweet 16 in 2004, but more importantly, how all five starters have earned their degrees. Helets his players take the credit and the accolades. He has a meticulous eye for detail from the commasinastory to the heights of his players.

"Let me ask you one question;
Name the two ACC coaches to make the NCAA tournament each of the last five seasons? Try Duke's Mike Krzyzewski and Mr. Sendek. He averaged 19 wins a season in 10 campaigns at NC State. Sendek knows how to put a winner on the court. I wish nothing but the best for Herb Sendek, who is a super class guy who knows his hoops. Arizona State has made a very good hire."

- Dick Vitale, ESPN Basketball Analyst

Just imagine what that is like in the video roomorontherecruiting trail. The best out-of-bounds play on the planet probably is in his travel bag. So is the blue print for the practice facility, academic plan, honoring former players, etc.

No detail is too small and nothing gets overlooked. While always looking to the future, he understands the importance of pausing to reflect and honor the past. His office walls at NC Statewere lined with photosoff or mer Wolfpack coaches who helped build the foundation. He will want to honor "jerseys" and have the mhang in the rafters.

Howdidhegetthis way? Where didhelearn all this? When it is in your blood, some of it is simply hereditary.

As the son of a coach, Sendek constantly taggedalongwithHerb, at each erand coach at both the highschool and junior collegelevels. His dad always made time for him, no meeting was too important or no practice was too stressful to take the little one along.

All-East Suburban honors. And he practiced then what he preaches now, as he posted a 4.0 grade-pointaverage. Growing upin that area, he developed the "work hard now, results come later" philosophy of the steel workers and coal miners with the tough hands and sack lunches. Western Pennsylvania understands that, as he is a member of the Penn Hills Hall of Fame, the East Boros Chapter of the Pennsylvania Hall of Fame, the Five-Star Basket ball Camp Hall of Fame and the Western Pennsylvania Chapter of the Pennsylvania Hall of Fame.

From there, he opted to attend Carnegie-MellonUniversity,earningaprestigiousCarnegie MeritScholarshipandtheopportunitytoplayfor coach Dave Maloney.

One week into practice prior to his senior season, hisplaying careerended unexpectedly when a new coach cut him and two other players recruited by Maloney. What seemed like a disastrous event for the future coach, however, turned outto have a silverlining. Chuck Crummie, the head coach at Central Catholic High School in Pittsburgh, gave Sendek the opportunity to serve as a volunteer assistant coach.

Aftergraduating from Carnegie-Mellon with a 3.95 GPA in 1985, he launched his coaching career. Hejoined Rick Pitino's staffat Providence College that fall, serving as an assistant coach with the Friars until 1989, and working on a Final Four staff in 1987 that coached Billy Donovan. He was now part of one of the biggest and best coaching fraternities in the game. The upbringing and less on staughtfrom those days of being on the same staff with the likes of Jeff Van Gundy, Stu Jackson, Billy Donovan, Tubby Smith and Gordon Chiseas helped him become one of the best coaches in the nation, not only on the court but in every facet of a player's life.

His favorite sports moments are the Immaculate Reception and watching his dad's teamplay in the National Junior College Athletic Association. Anyone can appreciate aperson who remembers the local sports history of where they grew up and who taught them how to play the game at such a young age.

On the court, Coach Sendek has built an impressive list of solid seasons, especially in his final five seasons at NC State. Not bad for a guy who when hired on April 17, 1996, at one of the most high-profile jobs in one of the most high-profile conferences, was they oungest coach in the ACC at just 33.

His final Wolfpack squad went 22-10 (his thirdstraight20-winseason), and topped Pac-10 foe California in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. Great numbers, but think about this...none of NC State's returning players averagedmorethan10.0pointspergametheprior season. The returning starters averaged 27.2 points the previous year. In one summer, Cedric Simmons went from 3.5 points pergame and 1.8 rebounds per game to a NBA first-round pick.

That can make a potential recruit interested pretty fast.

His 2004-05 squad advanced to the regional semifinal led by Julius Hodge and beat defending NCAA champion and 13th-ranked UCONN in the second round, which gave Sendek's staff another winover are centrational champion (seven of the past eight).

In 2003-04, the Wolfpack won 11 regularseasonleaguegamesforthefirsttimesince 1974, including five on the road. NC State was in the "Herb Sendek built a very successful program at NC State when the Wolfpack were really struggling and turned it into an annual NCAA Tournament participant and national contender.
