Head Coach Dennis Erickson

It just made sense. On Dec. 11, 2006, Arizona State named Dennis Erickson its 22nd football coach as it readies for its 30th year in Pacific-10 Conference play. Vice President of Athletics Lisa Love had football types calling her for two weeks ever since the Sun Devils announced their plans. The options were out there, but this one just made perfect sense.

The Sun Devils play in a big-time league with big-time games. It was necessary to get someone with Pac-10 experience. Someone who knows how to defeat a hungry underdog, one who knows how to stay at the top and be consistent once you get there, and at the same time lets his players have fun and play fast. Rebuilding Pac-10 programs is not easy, but the eventual hire had done it twice at places where it had not been done in decades.

How about trying a place that was on the doorstep of a national title in the past 11 years? A place with a great recruiting base in-state with California just a 50-minute flight away?

Arizona State, say hello to a two-time national champion (1989 and 1991), a two-time winner of the Pac-10 Coach of the Year Award (1988 and 2000) and the Sporting News National Coach of the Year in 2000. Dennis Erickson, meet the school that could complete your bowl victory cycle, with wins in the Fiesta, Sugar and Orange in your career. Can anyone smell a rose?

The numbers are numbing. Coach Erickson is 11th on the active career coaching list with 148. In fact, the second he signed his contract he became the Pac-10 leader in active wins, and six of the coaches have less than a third of his victories. Victories over the top-ranked team (three), wins over ranked teams (26)...all notes and achievements the Sun Devils have the opportunity to grasp almost each and every season.

"Dennis Erickson has proven both on the national level and in the Pac-10 that he can compete and win against the best," notes Lisa Love. "When you start looking at his accomplishments, what stands out is his big-game experience. He has been to the top of the college football world with two national titles at a proven national power in south Florida, and then took a program that had not had a winning season in three decades on the other side of the country to a Bowl Championship Series win. He coached in one of the nation's best rivalry games when it was at its highest level. He has had great success against the nation's top-ranked teams and also handled the pressure of being No. 1. Those things have defined him and we want them to define us."

His recruiting pitch will be easy. Going after a big lineman? He coached Warren Sapp to the Lombardi and Nagurski Awards and Russell Maryland to the Outland. Trying to land that big-time quarterback? Gino Toretta won the Heisman under Coach Erickson. If there is a big-time wide receiver in Los Angeles the Sun Devils want to sign, maybe questions can be answered by turning on the Cincinnati Bengals on Sundays and watching Chad Johnson and T.J. Houshmandzadeh catch ball after ball. What about a marquee running back? This coach motivated Steven Jackson into becoming a two-time Pac-10 rushing leader who is now one of the best young running backs in the NFL.

His relationships with players are legendary. Chad Johnson says he "just doesn't like Coach E., I love him" which means he lets the guys have fun. But another side is his football mind. Houshmandzadeh points it out by saying "he is an innovator" and mentions that "offensively he will just cut you up" which is another way of saying points are going to be scored at a rapid pace.

He turned 60 this spring, but he feels rejuvenated.

"I don't feel any different than I did 10 years ago. As a matter of fact, I have more energy now than I did when we rebuilt Oregon State. I am a couple of years removed from getting drained out in the NFL. Take away those six years and I think

I could live over 100," he quips. "The Xs and Os have changed a little over the years, but how a coach deals with players hasn't. Some say it is a different era, but what needs to get done to be successful is the same."

Coach Erickson, who is 148-65-1 (.694) in his 18 seasons as a head coach, is known in the Pac-10 as the architect of one of college football's biggest turnarounds when he coached at Oregon State from 1999-2002. He led the Beavers, who had not had a winning season since 1970, to a 7-5 record in his first season and then grabbed the attention of the college football world with an 11-1 mark in 2000, which was punctuated by a 41-9 defeat of No. 10 Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 1, 2001, OSU's first bowl win since the 1962 Liberty Bowl. Oregon State ended the season ranked fourth in the final AP poll and led the Pac-10 in scoring offense (32.6 points per game), scoring defense (18.5 point per game) and total defense (314.4 yards per game). Coach Erickson earned Sporting News National Coach of the Year while the Pac-10 coaches gave him conference honors. In addition to the Fiesta Bowl win over the tenth-ranked Irish, he led the Beavers to wins over eighth-ranked USC (first win over Trojans since 1967), at No. 23 UCLA (OSU's first road win over a ranked team since 1970) and vs. No. 5 Oregon in 2000 as well as a win over eighth-ranked Washington in 2001 (first win over the Huskies since 1985).

"They were losing and that was the mind-set of the place," Erickson said. "When we went in there and won, the mind-set changed," notes Erickson of attitude changes that sometimes are required in programs. "Our players know we've been there and what we've done. They have a respect for that. They know that, if they listen to what we ask them to do, they have a chance to be successful. If you do these things and are accountable in all aspects of what we ask you to do, you will be successful."

Not a single person can argue that. The proof is in the wins, especially the big wins.

Since entering the head-coaching scene in 1982 at Idaho, he has shown the ability to beat the best, as Lou Holtz and Erickson are the only coaches in the past 20 seasons to win three games against the No. 1 ranked team in the Associated Press poll. He led unranked Washington State to a 34-30 win at top-ranked UCLA on Oct. 29, 1988, and then beat top-ranked Notre Dame 27-10 in his first year at Miami on Nov. 25, 1989, which stopped a 23-game win streak for the Fighting Irish. His Hurricanes then beat rival Florida State 17-16 on Nov. 16, 1991, in Tallahassee to end the Seminoles' 16-game win streak. Only three teams have won a road game at a top-ranked team since that game.

"I can sit back now and evaluate a little better. This is going to be fun," says Erickson of his eventual time in both a great college town (Tempe), yet a suburb of the nation's sixth-largest city (Phoenix) whose growth continues at a rapid pace. "This is a great opportunity to have success. People are craving it around here. That is what is fun about it. This is a good way to end my career. It really is."

His career has had him in the national picture since moving from Pullman, Wash., to Florida in 1989 and taking over the Miami head coaching job after Jimmy Johnson left to coach the Dallas Cowboys. As the 18th head coach of Miami, the 41-year old Erickson became just the second Division I head coach to win a national title in his first season at a school, leading the Hurricanes to an 11-1 record and the school's third national title in seven seasons which was capped by a 33-25 win over seventh-ranked Alabama in the Sugar Bowl. That team, led by Cortez Kennedy, boasted the nation's top defense as it led the nation in fewest yards allowed per game (216.5) and points per game (9.3). The Hurricanes didn't allow a touchdown during a 10-quarter stretch in the regular season and held six opponents without a touchdown. It was the springboard that would lead to a 63-9 record (.875) while in South Florida, the best record by a Hurricane coach.

His 1990 squad went 10-2 included a 46-3 win over third-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl. Miami finished third in the national polls behind a school-record 482.9 yards per game of total offense, with another school record set in passing yards per game (324.8). The defense allowed just 79.7 yards per game on the ground. That team also received mention as the national champion by the New

NOTES ON DENNIS ERICKSON

- Won his first 32 home games at Miami from Sept. 3, 1989 until falling to Washington on Sept. 24, 1994. Those 32 wins remain part of the longest home winning streak in college football history, as Miami won 58 straight from 1985 to 1994. Coach Erickson and his staff defeated seven ranked teams during the streak, including victories over No. 1 Notre Dame (Nov. 25, 1989), No. 2 Florida State (Oct. 6, 1990) and No. 3 Florida State (Oct. 3, 1992).
- Coach Erickson's team have finished in the Associated Press Top 25 at the end of the year six times, with Miami earning the No. 1 ranking in 1989 and 1991 and also finishing third in 1990 and 1992. The Hurricanes were No. 15 in 1993 while Oregon State climbed all the way to fourth in 2001.
- Has been the head coach twice in a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup. His second ranked Hurricane squad won at top-ranked Florida State, 17-16, on Nov. 16, 1991, while second-ranked Alabama topped his top-ranked Hurricanes on Jan. 1, 1993, in the Sugar Bowl.
- Of his 18 teams, 14 have competed in postseason and he has five bowl victories (Fiesta, Orange, Cotton, Sugar and Aloha).

The second national title for Coach Erickson came in 1991 as Miami went 12-0 as it won the Associated Press vote and Washington was the Coaches' Poll winner. The Hurricanes shut out Nebraska 22-0 in the Orange Bowl to finish the season and allowed just 100 points all year, as no opponent scored more than 20 and only five opponents reached double-digit points.

Despite the national titles and the Oregon State turnaround, Erickson's fin-ranked Miami, despite the adversity, won its first game, a 24-7 contest at Iowa, and went 11-0 during the year, defeating three top-10 teams, including two on the road. It fell to second-ranked and undefeated Alabama 34-13 in the Sugar Bowl. Erickson earned Big East Coach of the Year while quarterback Gino Torretta earned the Heisman Trophy, just the second Hurricane to take home the honor, joining Vinny Testaverde in 1986.

His first trip through the Pac-10 was in 1987 when he took over the Washington State job. The Cougars had been 7-14-1 the previous two seasons and Erickson's first squad went 3-7-1. One year later, the 1988 Cougars finished 9-3, won at top-ranked UCLA, won their first bowl game since 1931 (defeating No. 14 Houston 24-22 in the Aloha Bowl) and were 16th in the final Associated Press poll, their first top-25 finish since 1972 (tied for 17th) and highest since 1951 (tied for 14th). The six-win improvement was tied for the best in the nation. All those numbers and goals were enough to make the University of Miami come calling.

He got his start in coaching in the early 1980s at the University of Idaho, also where he coached in 2006. After being named head coach on Dec. 11, 1981, he took over a struggling program and one season later the Vandals were winning. He won more than 70 percent of his games in his four years and reached the Division I-AA playoffs twice. In his first season, he led the Vandals to the Division I-AA playoffs where they beat Montana 21-7 but lost to Eastern Kentucky 38-30. He made a return trip in 1985 but lost to Eastern Washington 42-38. He moved onto to Wyoming and went 6-6 in 1986 as the Cowboys won games at Air Force and at Wisconsin before Washington State offered him its head coaching job.

est coaching job might have been in 1992 when Hurricane Andrew ripped through South Florida, as several of Miami's coaches (including Erickson), staff and students were moved out of their homes to Vero Beach (200 miles away) to complete pre-season drills. Top-

He was as an assistant at San Jose State (1979-81), the offensive coordinator at Fresno State (1976-1978) and at Idaho (1974-1975), the offensive backfield coach at Montana State (1971-1973), Billings High School's head coach (1970) and a Montana State graduate assistant (1969) before earning the Idaho job prior to the 1982 season.

Twice Erickson tried the NFL after excellent college performances. He took over the Seattle Seahawks in 1995 and went 31-33 in four seasons, competing against the eventual Super Bowl Champion Denver Broncos twice a year. In 2003 and 2004 he coached the San Francisco 49ers and went 9-23 in two seasons.

He graduated from Everett High School near Seattle in 1965 and earned a bachelor's degree in 1970 from Montana State where he was a two-time All-Big Sky quarterback. His family includes his wife, Marilyn, and sons Bryce and Ryan.

Head Coach Dennis Erickson

BEATING THE BEST: If Arizona State gets the chance to play the No. 1 ranked team in the Associated Press poll, the head coach can tell them the key to the wins. In the past 20 years, only two coaches have beaten the top-ranked team on three occasions: Dennis Erickson and Lou Holtz. Coach Erickson won at #1 UCLA in 1988, beat top-ranked Notre Dame one year later (ending an Irish 23-game winning streak) and won at #1 Florida State in 1991. He has posted more victories over the No. 1 ranked team (three) than eight Pac-10 schools. Arizona has done it twice, while ASU, Oregon State, Stanford, Washington and Washington State all have done it once. Cal and Oregon have never done it, while USC has done it seven times and UCLA three.

Head Coach Dennis Erickson

BEATING THE BEST: Coach Erickson is one of just six head coaches to take an unranked team and beat the top-ranked team in the past 30 years, and one of just three active coaches. Erickson's 34-30 Washington State win on Oct. 29, 1998 at the Rose Bowl over UCLA eventually led to the Cougars first bowl win since 1931. It also is one of just nine road wins over the nation's top-ranked team in that time and only three unranked teams have won road games over the top-ranked team since.

TWO-TIME WINNER: Dennis Erickson is one of just two coaches to win Pac-10 Coach of the Year at two schools, as he shared the honor at Washington State with Larry Smith of USC in 1988 and then won it outright in 2000 while at Oregon State. ASU's Bruce Snyder, the 1996 winner, also won the honor in 1990 while he was at California. Coach Erickson also has been named Coach of the Year in the Big Sky and the Big East.

RICH OLSON Offensive Coordinator/ QBs

An accomplished coaching veteran at both the collegiate and professional level, Rich Olson enters his first season as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Arizona State.

Olson joins the Sun Devil coaching staff after spending the 2006 season as the offensive coordinator at the University of Miami (Fla.).

Also, Olson returns to Dennis Erickson's staff, where he has been during eight seasons of his career, including stops with the San Francisco 49ers (2004), the Seattle Seahawks (1995-98) and at the University of Miami (Fla.) (1992-94). Olson returns to coaching in the state of Arizona, where he served as the Arizona Cardinals' offensive coordinator in 2001 and 2002 where he coached former Sun Devil star Jake Plummer.

Before his return to Miami in 2006, Olson spent 10 seasons in the NFL. He followed Erickson from Miami to the Seattle Seahawks in 1994, and has also coached with the Washington Redskins (1999-2000), San Francisco 49ers (2004) and Minnesota Vikings (2005).

A 30-year veteran coach in college football and the NFL, Olson has coached some of the top names in college and pro football. He also has extensive experience as an offensive tutor, having coached quarterbacks, running backs, wide receivers, and offensive linemen in addition to having served as the offensive coordinator at three locations. He was Miami's wide receivers coach in 1992 and was an integral part of Gino Torretta's success when the quarterback won the Heisman Trophy that year. In addition, Olson has coached quarterbacks such as former Sun Devil Jake Plummer, Daunte Culpepper and Warren Moon in the NFL, in addition to star players like Trent Dilfer, Eric Dickerson and Craig James at the college level.

During his three-year tenure (1992-94) as offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach at Miami, Olson helped direct a total of 10 players drafted into the NFL, including five wide receivers.

From 1984-1991, Olson coached under Jim Sweeney at Fresno State, where he tutored first-round draft choice Trent Dilfer, as well as Kevin Sweeney, who finished his college career as the nation's all-time leader in passing yardage (10,808), surpassing the mark previously set by Boston College's Doug Flutie. Additionally, Sweeney won back-to-back conference Co-MVP awards in 1985 and 1986. Also, while coaching the Bulldogs, Olson guided a total of 21 Honorable Mention All-America recipients as well as 1991 Big West Conference Co-Offensive Player of the Year, quarterback Mark Barsotti.

Olson coached on Lou Holtz's staff at Arkansas for three years as the Razorbacks' secondary coach, as well as at Southern Methodist under head coach Ron Meyer.

Olson served as an assistant offensive line coach at USC under John Robinson in 1977, and helped develop Pro Football Hall of Fame offensive lineman Anthony Munoz.

DAN COZZETTO

Tight Ends

Dan Cozzetto returns to Arizona State as a member of head coach Dennis Erickson's staff. He will coach the Sun Devil tight ends.

Cozzetto, a 27-year coaching veteran, returns to Tempe, where he served as ASU's offensive coordinator and offensive line coach from 1992-99. Additionally, he has coached for a total of 14 years for four different teams in the Pacific-10 Conference. Overall, Cozzetto has coached under Erickson for five seasons at the University of Idaho (2006), with the NFL's San Francisco 49ers (2004) and at Oregon State University (2000-02). He has also served as an assistant coach at the University of Washington (2003), the University of California (1990-91) and at the University of Idaho (1979-89).

During Cozzetto's eight seasons as ASU's offensive coordinator and offensive line coach, his offenses averaged 396.3 yards of total offense per game and Cozzetto guided a total of 20 offensive players (eight offensive linemen) that were ultimately drafted into the NFL.

In 1999, Cozzetto led a Sun Devil offense that averaged 172.1 rushing yards-per-game, an average that has not been topped by an ASU offense since that season. Offensive tackle Marvel Smith (Sporting News) and tight end Todd Heap (AP) both earned Third-Team All-America honors, while Heap, tailback J.R. Redmond and Smith earned First-Team All-Pac-10 recognition and tight end Kendrick Bates, tailback Delvon Flowers, offensive tackle Victor Leyva and guard Scott Peters all earned Honorable Mention All-Conference accolades.

Cozzetto's 1998 offense averaged 411.8 yards per game, the third straight season ASU cracked the 400-yard mark. That year, ASU averaged 259 yards per game passing, which at the time was the highest average in school history. Center Grey Ruegamer was recognized as a Walter Camp All-America selection, and was named a Second-Team All-American by Football News. Additionally, tailback J.R. Redmond and Ruegamer earned First-Team All-Pac-10, and wide receiver Lenzie Jackson, fullback Jeff Paulk and left tackle Marvel Smith were named as Honorable Mention All-Pac-10.

In 1997, Cozzetto's offense led the Pac-10 in rushing (193.8 ypg) and was fourth in total offense (406.5 ypg). Offensive linemen Kyle Murphy and Grey Ruegamer were first-team all-Pac-10 while Murphy was a Third-Team All-

American by The Football News and the Associated Press. Ruegamer was Third-Team All-American by The Sporting News. Cozzetto helped guide Murphy, tailback J.R. Redmond and Ruegamer to First-Team All-Pac-10 recognition, while wide receiver Lenzie Jackson, tailback Michael Martin and tight end Zack Romero all were tabbed as Honorable Mention All-Pac-10 honorees.

Cozzetto's offense for the 11-1, 1996 Pac-10 Conference Champion and Rose Bowl participant Sun Devils was one of the most potent and dangerous in school history, averaging 474.4 total yards-per-game and 42.6 points-per-game. Leading the way was quarterback Jake Plummer, a Heisman Trophy finalist and the Pac-10 Conference's Offensive Player of the Year, one of eight offensive players for ASU to earn All-Conference recognition. Also, Cozzetto mentored four offensive players to earn All-America honors, including tailback Terry Battle, Plummer, wide receiver Keith Poole and left tackle Juan Roque (Consensus All-America). In the past 34 seasons, only the 1981 Sun Devil squad topped ASU's 234.1 rushing yards-per-game average that year. Also, Cozzetto's offense helped to accumulate the 64 touchdowns scored by ASU as a team that season, the second-highest single-season total in Sun Devil history.

During Cozzetto's first four seasons at ASU, 18 offensive players for the Sun Devils earned All-Pac-10 recognition, and in 1995, left tackle Juan Roque earned Second-Team All-America recognition by The Sporting News, while both Roque and quarterback Jake Plummer earned Honorable Mention All-America honors by Football News.

Matt Lubick begins his first season at Arizona State, coaching safeties and acting as head coach Dennis Erickson's recruiting coordinator.

Lubick, 35, is reunited with Erickson, under whom he coached at Oregon State University in 1999 and 2000. Lubick recently completed his second season as wide receivers coach at the University of Mississippi, having joined head coach Ed Orgeron's staff in January of 2005.

Lubick arrived at Ole Miss after spending the previous four seasons at his alma mater, Colorado State, where he served as wide receivers coach under his father, Rams' head coach Sonny Lubick from 2001-04. During his four years coaching in Fort Collins, Colo., Lubick helped guide Colorado State to three consecutive bowl game appearances (New Orleans, 2001, Liberty, 2002 and San Francisco, 2003).

Lubick came to Colorado State after having served as secondary coach at Oregon State where he worked under Erickson during the 1999 and 2000 seasons. While at OSU, Lubick helped coordinate the team's recruiting efforts during the Beavers' emergence into the upper echelon of the college football scene, as the Beavers enjoyed the school's finest season in 2000, finishing 11-1 and defeated Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl. While at OSU, Lubick aided the development of defensive back Dennis Weathersby, who earned First-Team All-Pacific-10 Conference honors in 2000.

Prior to his stint with Oregon State, Lubick spent two seasons (1997-98) at San Jose State working with the wide receivers, and one season (1996) as the cornerbacks coach at California State-Northridge. AL SIMMONS Cornerbacks/ Special Teams

Al Simmons returns for his second season at Arizona State. Simmons will oversee the cornerbacks as well as handle special teams with Jamie Christian.

Simmons' diverse background includes coaching experience at both the collegiate and professional levels. He has seven previous seasons of Division I coaching experience, including three at California (1998-2000), two at Oregon State (2001 and 2002) and one at San Jose State (2005). In addition, he has also served under Dennis Erickson with the San Francisco 49ers for two seasons and has participated in the National Football League's Minority Fellowship Coaching program in 1993 with the Oakland Raiders, in 1996 with the Arizona Cardinals, in 1999 with the San Diego Chargers and in 2000 with the Dallas Cowboys.

Simmons came to ASU from San Jose State where he served as cornerbacks coach under head coach Dick Tomey. At San Jose State, Simmons was responsible for developing the cornerbacks, assisting in the weekly game plans and assisting in the planning of the team's daily practices. Last season, one of Simmons' pupils, senior CB Trestin George, was named to the All-Western Athletic Conference's Second-Team after a season in which he intercepted three passes, recorded 48 tackles and broke up seven passes.

With Erickson at San Francisco, Simmons served as Cornerbacks Coach before being moved up to Secondary Coach his second season. In his first season with the 49ers, Simmons worked under former Atlanta Falcons head coach Jim Mora, who was the Defensive Coordinator in San Francisco in 2003. In 2003, the 49ers defense recorded 36 takeaways, their most since 1997.

Simmons was also a part of Erickson's staff at Oregon State where he served as Secondary Coach for two seasons. While in Corvallis, Simmons coached All-American CB Dennis Weathersby. In 2002, Simmons' input helped Oregon State lead the Pacific-10 Conference in passing defense.

Before joining Erickson at Oregon State, Simmons coached the cornerbacks at California for three seasons (1998-2000). At Cal, he mentored the transformation of one-time tailback Deltha O'Neal into an All-America defensive back. O'Neal would later be the first cornerback selected in the 2000 National Football League draft.

Simmons is a native of the Bay Area who attended Cal State Hayward, serving as defensive coordinator and secondary/linebacker coach there from 1986-93. In 1992, his team finished No. 1 in the conference in scoring defense and No. 2 in total defense.

In 1994, Simmons moved over to San Francisco State as defensive coordinator and secondary coach, helping the Gators place second in their conference in total defense, pass defense, turnovers created and scoring defense.

Simmons left the Bay Area in February 1995 to become secondary coach at Montana State for two seasons. While he was there, Montana State finished second in the Big Sky Conference in pass efficiency defense in both 1995 and '96. He also served as the defensive coordinator at Idaho State in 1997.

As a player, Simmons was a two-time first team All-NorCal Conference selection as a strong safety at Cal State Hayward, where he played in 1983 and '84.

Simmons graduated with a bachelor's degree in business administration in 1987 and earned a master's degree in physical education in 1991, both from Cal State Hayward.

GREGG SMITH Offensive Line

Gregg Smith begins his first season as offensive line coach at Arizona State and his 38th year overall as a football coach.

Smith has coached alongside Dennis Erickson for 24 years and has 37 total years of football coaching experience. During the majority of Smith's career, he has served as Erickson's assistant head coach and offensive line coach.

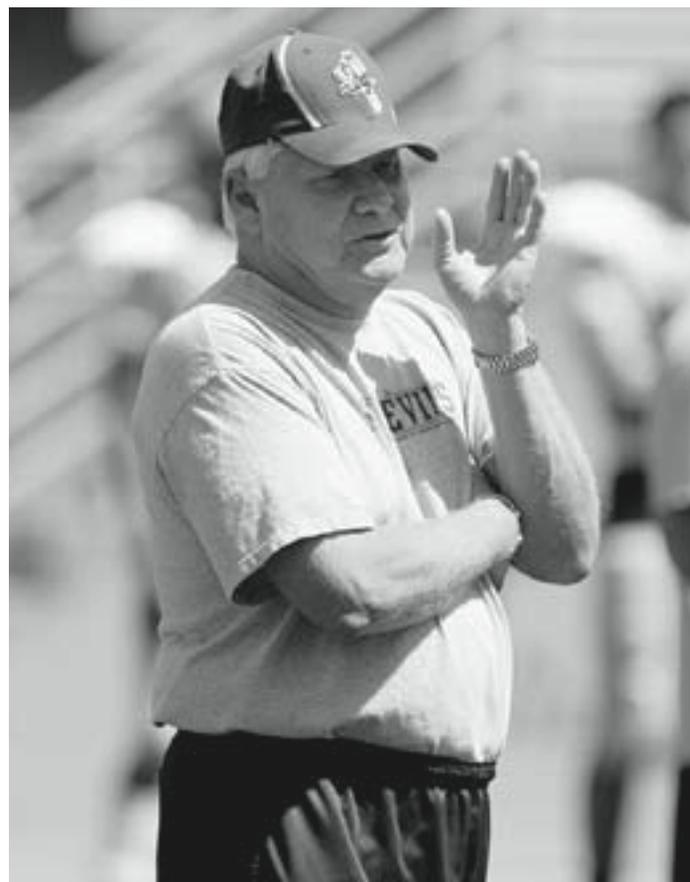

Smith spent the 2006 season coaching at the University of Idaho after spending the 2003 and 2004 seasons with the San Francisco 49ers. Under Smith's direction, offensive lineman Jade Tadvick earned First-Team All-Western Athletic Conference honors for the Vandals in 2006.

During the 1999-2002 seasons, Smith served as Erickson's assistant head coach and offensive line coach at Oregon State University. During his tenure coaching with the Beavers, Smith mentored Chris Gibson, who earned Third-Team All-America recognition by the Associated Press. At the time, Gibson was only the second offensive lineman in the previous 22 seasons to earn All-America honors for the Beavers. Gibson also earned First-Team All-Pac-10 honors in 2000, as did Aaron Koch before him in 1999, the first time Oregon State registered back-to-back First-Team All-Pac-10 offensive linemen since the 1972-73 seasons. Also, Smith's Beaver offensive linemen helped enable OSU tailbacks Steven Jackson and Ken Simonton to submit three of the top four single-season rushing totals in school history during the 1999, 2000 and 2002 seasons.

From 1995-1998, Smith enjoyed his first stay in the National Football League, coaching among Erickson's staff with the Seattle Seahawks.

From 1989 to 1994, Smith coached with Erickson at the University of Miami (Fla.), highlighted by two National Championship seasons (1989 and 1991). Three of Smith's offensive line pupils at Miami were drafted into the NFL, including Carlos Etheredge (1993), Leon Searcy (1992) and Mike Sullivan (1991).

Before joining Erickson as part of the Hurricanes' staff, Smith coached at Washington State University (1987, 1988), at the University of Wyoming (1985) and at the University of Idaho (1982-85). While at Washington State, Smith helped develop guard Mike Utley, who in 1988 earned First-Team All-America honors from the Associated Press, UPI, AFCA-Kodak, Scripps-Howard and from Football News. Utley earned First-Team All-Pac-10 honors that year as well.

Smith began his coaching career at the high school level, coaching at Buhl (Idaho) High School (1973-81) and at Sunset High School in Beaverton, Ore. (1969-72).

Smith, 60, graduated from the University of Idaho in 1969.

GRADY STRETZ Defensive Line

Tempe native and former McClintock High School and UCLA star Grady Stretz begins his second season at Arizona State and first under head coach Dennis Erickson. Stretz will handle the defensive line.

Stretz came to ASU after having spent eight years at the University of New Mexico, coaching defensive line and safeties. After five years tutoring the defensive line from 1998-

2002, Stretz mentored the Lobo safeties his final three years in Albuquerque in addition to coaching the Lobo special teams units. Stretz helped New Mexico become one of only three schools to finish in the top-30 in the nation in total defense six of the past seven seasons.

Under Stretz in 2004, senior co-captain Josh Bazinet, a safety and former walk-on, was named second-team All-Mountain West Conference. He tied for the league lead in fumble recoveries with four, including a 70-yard score on a return against Oregon State.

Following the 2003 campaign, senior safety Brandon Ratcliff was named first-team All-Mountain West Conference for the second year in a row. Additionally, senior Sidney Wiley earned honorable mention honors from his strong safety position, while fellow senior Terrell Golden started 38 games from 2000-03.

Lobo defensive linemen also flourished under Stretz's guidance. Daniel Kegler and D.J. Renteria were both second-team all-league in 2002 while Hebrews Josue was selected team captain and honorable mention all-conference. Defensive end Brian Johnson was a two-time All-Mountain West Conference selection in 2000-01, the first UNM defensive lineman to be so recognized in consecutive years since John Bell in 1989-90.

Due to an improved defensive front, the Lobos led the Mountain West Conference in rushing defense in 2000 and '01 and finished second in '02. The 2001 unit allowed a paltry 87.4 yards a game, the second-lowest total in school history.

In 2000, the Lobos finished 17th in the nation in total defense (309.4 ypg), their best ranking since 1964. UNM recorded 52 sacks which was a school record, 23.5 of which came from the defensive line. Johnson was named all-league and he led the conference with 9.5 sacks. The UNM run defense held foes to an MWC-low 115.3 yards a game, including just 93.7 yards per game in league contests.

In Stretz's second season (1999), Jason Purvis led the squad with five tackles for loss. Thanks to several forced fumbles by the defensive line, the Lobos went from an -0.83 turnover margin in 1998 to +0.18 in 1999, the third-best figure in the Mountain West.

Stretz, 34, was a four-year letterwinner at UCLA and a member of the 1993 Rose Bowl team that finished the season ranked 17th nationally. During his senior year (1995), Stretz earned honorable mention All-Pacific-10 Conference accolades at defensive tackle. He also had the distinction of being named CBS Player of the Game versus Washington State, earning the Chevrolet Scholarship Award. Stretz culminated his final campaign at Westwood by winning the N.N. Sugarman Trophy for Best Leadership on the squad.

Stretz graduated from McClintock High in 1991, where he was a member of the 1989 football team that won a state championship. He received both of his degrees from UCLA – a bachelor's in History in 1995 and master's in Arts and Education in 1997. Following his UCLA playing career, Stretz spent some time in camp with the New York Giants where he signed on as a rookie free agent in 1996.

Stretz and his wife, Sarah, have a four-year-old son, Maddox and a two-year-old daughter, Makenna.

ERIC YARBER

Wide Receivers

Eric Yarber begins his first season at Arizona State, coaching the wide receivers on head coach Dennis Erickson's staff.

Yarber is reunited with Erickson, with whom he has coached for seven seasons during Erickson's tenures with the San Francisco 49ers (2003, 2004), at Oregon State University (1999-2002) and with the Seattle Seahawks (1998). He also played for Erickson during his college career at the University of Idaho (1984-85). Yarber has also coached at the University of Washington (2005, 2006), at UNLV (1997) and at the University of Idaho (1996).

Yarber spent the 2005 and 2006 seasons as the University of Washington's wide receivers coach on head coach Tyrone Willingham's staff. Under Yarber's tutelage during the 2006 season, Husky wide receiver Sonny Shackelford finished fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference in touchdown catches (seven) and eighth in receptions (50) and receiving yards (666), while teammate Anthony Russo ranked third in the conference with a 17.3 yards-per-catch average. Yarber joined the Washington staff after having spent two seasons with the San Francisco 49ers.

Yarber coached the 49ers' wide receivers in 2003 and 2004 under Erickson, guiding Pro Bowler Terrell Owens to a 1,000-yard season in his first year. Yarber also played an integral part in the development of rookie wide receiver Brandon Lloyd, who led the team with a 15.1-yard average per catch in 2004.

Yarber was also a member of Erickson's staff at Oregon State from 1999-2002. He coached the receivers for three seasons after switching from running backs coach following the 1999 season. During the 1999 season, Yarber coached running back Ken Simonton, who rushed for 1,486 yards and 19 touchdowns that season. Yarber also coached wide receiver James Newson, who gained over 2,200 yards in 2001 and 2002, including a 1,284 yard season in 2002. During Yarber's tenure, the Beavers sent two receivers to the NFL in 2000, as Chad Johnson was a second-round selection of Cincinnati and T.J. Houshmandzadeh was the seventh-round pick of the Bengals.

Yarber's coaching career began at his alma mater, Idaho, as secondary coach in 1996. He spent one season at Idaho before joining the staff at UNLV as receivers coach. Erickson brought Yarber to the NFL ranks as offensive quality control coach for the Seattle Seahawks in 1998.

A 12th-round draft pick out of Idaho by Washington in the 1986 NFL Draft, Yarber spent three seasons with the Redskins as a wide receiver and kick returner. He was a member of Washington's Super Bowl XXII championship team in 1988, leading the team that season with 37 punt returns.

While playing for Erickson at the University of Idaho, Yarber was a Kodak All-American and the Big Sky Conference Most Valuable Player as a senior after catching 75 passes for 1,103 yards. Equipment/Video/Office Staff

Equipment Operations

The Equipment Operations department is headed up by Mark Zimmer. He is assisted by Paul Lopez, John Bieber and Cecilia Snipes. Along with 14 student managers, this staff handles the order, inventory and issue of equipment for all 22 sports.

Upon entering the Sun Devil football program, each new student-athlete is outfitted with new equipment that is maintained throughout the year by the equipment staff. At the end of each year, the helmets and shoulder pads are re-conditioned and re-certified for use the following year. All practice gear is washed on a daily basis throughout the season and is replaced as needed; game gear is washed immediately after home games or upon return from road games.

In addition to handling the daily equipment needs for the football team, Zimmer and his staff also make arrangements for the transportation of equipment for all football road trips. This process begins on Thursday evening, when all selected travelers' helmets are thoroughly inspected for new hardware, facemasks and the application of new decals. Once each player packs his equipment bag, the equipment staff loads the bags on to a truck, which will then transport them and the rest of the equipment to that weeks game. Approximately 7,500 pounds of equipment (including sports medicine and video equipment) is transported for each road game.

The video itself is captured into the Sun Devil computer system and then fed through a closed intranet set system to both the 10 coaches' offices as well as all of the meeting rooms at the Carson Student-Athlete Center.
