

HENRY "TURTLE" THOMAS

Assistant Coach/Recruiting Coordinator

Henry "Turtle" Thomas begins his first season at Arizona State as assistant coach and national recruiting coordinator. Thomas comes to ASU after seven seasons at LSU, where he was the Tiger's hitting instructor and recruiting coordinator.

No stranger to big time college baseball, Thomas has coached at some of the elite programs throughout the United States. He began his Division I career as an assistant at Clemson, spending eight seasons there, including a trip to the College World Series in 1980. From there he moved to Georgia Tech, where he spent two years as the assistant head coach under current Miami head coach Jim Morris. In 1988 he was named assistant coach and recruiting coordinator for the University of Miami (Florida), where he spent 12 seasons. While with the Hurricanes, Thomas was a part of nine College World Series teams, including the 1999 National Champions. Thomas and Miami went to Omaha six consecutive years from 1994 to 1999.

Thomas joined the LSU Tigers in 2000 and promptly won another National Championship, his second in a row. The 2000 title was one of three trips to the College World Series that Thomas made in his seven seasons in Baton Rouge. All told, Thomas has been to 13 College World Series so far in his 29-year coaching career.

Thomas is considered one of the premiere college baseball recruiters in the nation, thanks to 18 straight recruiting classes ranked among Collegiate Baseball's Top 10 at both Miami and LSU. He is the only recruiting coordinator in the nation who has signed the number one rated class four times, and he has never had a class rated lower than ninth over the past 18 years. Thomas has also signed the #2 rated class four times. Every class he signed at LSU was ranked in the Top 6, including his 2004 class which was considered #1 in the country.

More than 60 of Thomas' recruits have advanced to play pro baseball, including big leaguers Charles Johnson, Alex Fernandez, Pat Burrell, Danny Graves, Alex Cora, Aubrey Huff and Brad Hawpe. He also signed superstars Chipper Jones and Alex Rodriguez to National Letters of Intent while at Miami, although both signed professionally rather than attend college.

A 1975 graduate of High Point (N.C.) College, Thomas earned a master's degree from UNC-Greensboro in 1978. He was a four-year letterman at catcher, playing two seasons at Campbell University before completing his final two undergraduate years at High Point.

Thomas is married to the former Maria Carmen Nateman, and they have three children, Kevin, Kristen and Keith. He picked up the nickname "Turtle" in junior high school from a classmate who thought he resembled a turtle.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Turtle Thomas was not only the best hitting coach

I've ever had but also one of the greatest mentors as well. To this day, even after six seasons in the major leagues, I still consult with him about baseball and life. Turtle was always tough on us all in college, but it paid off for many of us who have made it to the big leagues. A lot of hitting in baseball has to do with being prepared mentally and Turtle taught me in college how to be mentally tough. I can't tell you how appreciative I am of everything he's ever done for me."

— Aubrey Huff, Current Baltimore Orioles outfielder

"Turtle Thomas is the best coach I've ever seen in 1-on-1 situations. He was very effective working with our hitters and had a noticeable impact on our offense. A tremendous pickup for ASU."

— Hall of Fame coach Skip Bertman

"When I speak about loyalty, I think about Turtle Thomas. Turtle possesses a great knowledge of the game of baseball and has a passion for the players he coaches. Helping young players improve and succeed is very important to him, and his enthusiasm for his players is extremely evident."

— Former LSU head coach, Smoke Laval

ANDY STANKIEWICZ

Assistant Coach

A seven-year Major League Baseball veteran, Andy Stankiewicz begins his first season as an assistant coach at Arizona State University. Stankiewicz joins ASU from the New York Yankees organization, where he has spent the past four and a half years as a coach and scout. He was the Yankees south-west area scout prior to joining the Sun Devils.

Stankiewicz joins the college ranks one year removed from a successful managerial stint in the Yankees minor league system. He spent 2004 and 2005 as the manager of the Staten Island Yankees, the class A affiliate of the New York Yankees. Stankiewicz led Staten Island to the 2005 NY-Penn League Championship in only his second year as a manager. Before managing Staten Island, Stankiewicz spent two seasons as the defensive coordinator and roving infield instructor for all the New York Yankees Minor League teams. He also spent one season as the hitting instructor for the Gulf Coast Yankees in the Rookie League.

Stankiewicz was a standout infielder for the Pepperdine Waves from 1983-1986. His name is listed in several Top 10 lists on the Pepperdine Career Offensive Leaders, including Runs (172), Triples (9), At Bats (755), Stolen Bases (101) and Games Played (220). Following a stellar 1985 junior season, Stankiewicz was selected in the 18th round of the MLB draft by the Detroit Tigers, but returned to school for his senior season. In the 1986 draft, the New York Yankees selected him in the 12th round.

Stankiewicz went on the play 16 seasons of professional baseball, seven of them at the Major League level. His big league resume includes years with the Yankees (1992-93), Astros (1994-95), Expos (1996-97) and as an original member of the Arizona Diamondbacks during the franchise's inaugural 1998 season. He retired as a player following the 2001 professional season.

Stankiewicz was a part of four championship teams during his professional playing career. He was a member of the 1987 Florida State League champions (Ft. Lauderdale), won back-to-back Eastern League titles in 1988 and 1989 (Albany), and won the 1991 International League championship (Columbus). As both a player and manager, Stankiewicz has been a member of five championship teams at the professional level.

Andy and his wife Mari Ana live in Gilbert with their four children Dane, Marisa, Drew and Mia.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"What an outstanding infield coach you have on your staff. Having spent the last three years with Andy in the Yankees organization, I know he is a dedicated and very knowledgeable infield coach. He is a great student of the game and his work ethic is tremendous. Having coached him as a player and worked with him as an instructor, I'm certain that you have one of the finest young infield coaches in the game. Congratulations and continued success to the ASU baseball program."

— Bucky Dent, Cincinnati Reds bench coach

"The ASU baseball program is fortunate to have Andy on its staff. Not only is he a gifted and knowledgeable coach, but he is a man who will make a life-long difference in the lives of those around him. He is a man of integrity who thinks of others higher than himself. I look forward to seeing the impact he will make."

— Major League veteran Jay Bell

"Andy Stankiewicz is a great addition to the baseball staff at ASU. Andy combines an outstanding knowledge of the game with a passion for teaching and developing young baseball players. I had the pleasure of managing Andy in 1998 and always appreciated his approach, work ethic and dedication to his team. There is no doubt that Andy will have a lasting and positive impact on Sun Devil student-athletes."

— Buck Showalter,

Manager - New York Yankees,

Arizona Diamondbacks, Texas Rangers

"There are no baseball people who I hold in higher regard than Andy Stankiewicz. Andy was an exceptional player, coach, manager and scout for the Yankees. His impact on our organization has been extraordinary. Andy is a winner, a great teacher of the game and a man of the highest honesty and integrity. A parent could not trust their son's development to a finer person and coach."

— Mark Newman, SVP Baseball Operations
New York Yankees

GRAHAM ROSSINI

Director of Baseball Operations

Graham Rossini, Director of Baseball Operations, enters his eighth season with the Sun Devil Baseball program in 2007. With 12 years of experience working in college and professional baseball, Rossini brings solid credentials to the program and is responsible for the off-the-field operation of the baseball office. He oversees the baseball budget, game operations, official recruiting visits, team travel, baseball camps, ballpark improvements and all other business aspects of the baseball office.

Rossini is also baseball's liaison with ASU's media relations office, the Pac-10 Conference and the NCAA. Rossini also works closely with the large contingent of Major League Baseball scouts and executives that work in the Valley.

In an effort to increase ASU Baseball awareness nationally and improve upon ASU's already impressive status as the top attendance team on the West Coast, Rossini is working with other members of ASU's Athletic Department to identify innovative ways to promote Sun Devil Baseball. In 2006, EA Sports launched the first ever college baseball video game and featured Packard Stadium as only one of 19 ballparks included in the game. Rossini has also worked closely with Wilson Sporting Goods and Nike to include ASU in various corporate promotions and national advertising campaigns.

Along with ASU Head Coach Pat Murphy, Diamondbacks General Partner Jeff Moorad and President Derrick Hall, Rossini helped orchestrate the first annual "Challenge at Chase" in 2006. ASU squared up in a non-conference matchup with in-state rival University of Arizona in the first collegiate game to ever be played at the Diamondbacks' Chase Field. Proceeds from the 2006 event will be used towards the Diamondbacks Youth Field building program. This past off-season, ASU signed a five-year commitment to continue the Challenge at Chase through the 2011 season.

In addition to the business components of the program, Rossini is involved in the planning and execution of various team events throughout the year. Working with the On Deck Circle, Sun Angel Foundation and Baseball Alumni Association, Rossini coordinates the annual Alumni Golf Tournament, Team Awards Banquet and Meet the Team events. He was very active in the Bobby Winkles Field dedication that took place during the 2001 season, was heavily involved in the planning and preparation of the Jim Brock Ballpark dedication in 2006 and has served on the tournament committee for the NCAA Regionals hosted by ASU in 2000, 2002, 2003 and 2005.

Over the past six years, Rossini has been instrumental in the planning and design efforts of the ongoing renovations at Winkles Field-Packard Stadium at Brock Ballpark. Prior to the 2003 season, a brand new playing field was installed as well as minor cosmetic improvements on the concourse of the facility. In the fall of 2004, a brand new players' clubhouse facility was completed and now houses one of college baseball's finest player facilities. Each of the forty lockers installed for player use were paid for by a Baseball Alumni Locker Sponsorship program. In the spring of 2005, the original players' lounge was renovated and now includes a video room, press conference room, one-on-one meeting space, umpire locker room and coaches locker room. Plans are now being developed to complete the renovation and include chair back seating, a press box expansion, stadium covering and tribute areas throughout the concourse.

Following three years with the San Diego Padres' Class AA affiliate in Mobile, Ala., Rossini joined Sun Devil Baseball prior to the 2000 Pac-10 Championship season as a Baseball Operations Intern. Shortly before the 2002 season, he was named Director of Baseball Administration, a position he held until the summer of 2003 when he was promoted to Director of Baseball Operations. In the summer of 2005, Rossini inherited new responsibilities and was named to his current post as Director of Player Development/Baseball Operations.

Rossini was born in Red Bank, N.J., grew up in Mobile, Ala. where he was a baseball and academic standout at 6A baseball power Baker High School before graduating Cum Laude from ASU's nationally renowned W.P. Carey School of Business in 2002.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Due to Graham's hard work and dedication, ASU's baseball program operates more on a major league level than Division I. Thanks in part to his behind the scenes efforts, Sun Devil baseball remains at the elite level among collegiate programs."

— John Askins, Chairman/CEO of the College Baseball Foundation and Hall of Fame

"Graham's organizational skills and general effectiveness are well known and can be documented by anyone around the program. That said, what impresses me even more than those skills is his feeling for — his devotion to — the baseball program; the selfless giving of his time, energy — and, you might say, a large part of his soul. He is both responsible and loyal. The thread that is Graham Rossini is woven into the entire fabric of ASU Baseball."

— Harvey Dorfman, Scott Boras Corporation

"Graham is a difference maker. His attention to detail and standard for quality is evident in the Sun Devil baseball program."

— Lisa Love, VP of Athletics, ASU

"We deal with over 150 NCAA baseball teams and none is more organized than ASU. I attribute that to Graham. We're also able to play-test more products with ASU, because Graham handles so many details that ensure that our tests will be handled professionally. Because of Graham's management of the Wilson and DeMarini relationship with ASU, we gain more knowledge about our products more efficiently than with any other team."

— Jim Hackett, GM, Wilson Sporting Goods

"Graham is to Arizona State as is any top executive is to his CEO. His industriousness, his energy, plus his organizational and people skills are unmatched by anyone in his position. He and Murph have pioneered and legitimized a position that is common now, but was unheard of even 5 years ago in college baseball."

— Tim Corbin, Head Baseball Coach, Vanderbilt

"Graham is as talented and experienced a baseball executive as there is at the collegiate level. I have known him for several years and become more and more impressed with his abilities and accomplishments. He understands his role and the importance of being organized, passionate, loyal and creative. He has tremendous knowledge of the game and has created a database of resources and contacts that rivals any at all levels of the sport. Graham is truly one of the rising stars in the sports world due to his impeccable track record and the bright future that lies ahead for him."

— Derrick Hall, President, Arizona Diamondbacks

JEFF MOUSSER

Graduate Manager

his wife, Autumn, in June 2004. The couple had their first child, Max, in August of 2006.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Jeff was a great competitor and is very passionate about the game — it showed when he played."

— Former ASU pitcher Jason Urquidez

"Jeff was an outstanding competitor whenever he took the mound. I expect his competitiveness will carry over into his baseball career. He has extensive knowledge of baseball, and I expect the relationship he has with young people to be very significant in the development of a student-athlete."

— Ryan Roberts, BYU assistant coach

"Jeff was always the consummate pitcher. He had a great feel for what kind of pitcher he was and how to maximize that to the fullest in order to achieve success for himself and his team. Although I never had the pleasure of coaching him, I'm sure that he will have success in his baseball career."

— Jim Schlossnagle, head coach, TCU

Former Sun Devil pitcher Jeff Mouser enters his third season on the baseball staff in 2007. As a graduate manager, Mouser is heavily involved in the day-to-day administration of the baseball program and helps direct Coach Murphy's Cleats All Nine Baseball Academy. As a former ASU student-athlete, Mouser is also involved in various alumni outreach programs. Pursuant to NCAA compliance guidelines, the graduate manager position is a non-coaching position.

Mouser started his collegiate baseball career at BYU, where he spent three seasons. His freshman season with the Cougars saw him go 3-0, and earn a MWC Pitcher of the Week honor. During his sophomore campaign, Mouser was 9-4 with a 4.88 ERA for the Mountain West Conference Champs. He earned Second Team All-MWC honors. He went 5-7 during his third season in Provo and decided to transfer to Arizona State for his senior season. Mouser went 6-4 with a 3.94 ERA during his only season in Tempe, earning an All-Pac-10 Honorable Mention. He was selected in the 35th round of the 2004 MLB Draft by the Minnesota Twins and went 2-0 with a 4.63 ERA for the Elizabethton Twins.

The Tempe, Ariz., native was a prep standout at Marcos de Niza High School. Jeff earned team MVP honors twice at Marcos, and was named First Team All-State his senior season. He was married to

MIKEL MORENO

Graduate Manager

Rejoining the Sun Devils' staff is former Sun Devil All-American Mikel Moreno. An outfielder for the Sun Devils from 1995-98, Moreno has previously been the head baseball coach at Florence High School and has also served as an assistant coach at both Central Arizona College and the University of New Orleans. Moreno previously served as an undergraduate assistant in 1999, but returns to ASU to pursue his graduate degree and will serve as a Graduate Manager in 2007. Moreno will assist with the day-to-day operations of the baseball office as well as various alumni outreach programs. Pursuant to NCAA compliance guidelines, the graduate manager is a non-coaching position.

Known for his explosive speed, power at the plate and strong outfield arm, Moreno was a standout for Coach Murphy, hitting .345 over his four seasons in Tempe. He totaled 277 hits and 236 runs scored in maroon and gold, knocking in 159 runs and belting 30 homers. Moreno is listed among the Top 10 in several career offensive categories (at-bats, runs, hits and doubles).

Moreno helped lead the ASU to the Atlantic Regional Final in 1997 against Miami and the College World Series in 1998, where ASU finished as the national runner-up. Moreno was named an Atlantic Regional All-Tournament Selection in 1997 and NCBWA Third-Team All-American in 1998. The Chicago Cubs drafted Moreno in the 22nd round of the June amateur draft. He played in the Cubs system in 1998 and 1999 before finishing his professional career with independent Valley Vipers, managed by former ASU pitching coach Bob Welch, in 2000.

A native of Mesa, Moreno was a two-sport star in both football and baseball. As a senior, he was named Arizona Republic 5A Player of the Year in both football and baseball. Moreno turned down a football scholarship offer from Army to attend ASU on a baseball scholarship. Mikel and his son Mikel-Patrik currently reside in Tempe.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Mikel Moreno is an exceptional addition to the ASU baseball staff. He combines his extraordinary work ethic with a relentlessly calculated approach to excellence to everything that he does. Mikel's experience with and passion for the ASU baseball program are second to none. He is a natural fit for the program."

— ASU career RBI leader and CEO of TheSportsTV.com, Andrew Beinbrink

"He was tough on me, but he made me a man."

— Former ASU infielder, Mark Ernster

"Mikel was the most competitive teammate I have had. He put the team in front of him. He wanted to win more than anyone I have met."

— Two-time Pac-10 POY, Casey Myers

"Mikel was the ultimate teammate: driven and intense. Coach Murphy would tell us when we go to war you need to have guys you want to be in the foxhole with. Mikel was that person."

— Former ASU outfielder and 1997 1st round draft pick Dan McKinley

MICHAEL COLLINS

Manager

Former ASU infielder and All-College World Series performer Michael Collins joins the baseball staff after retiring from his professional playing career during the off-season. Collins joins the 2007 baseball staff as an undergraduate manager as he completes his ASU degree. Collins starred in the ASU infield from 1996-98 before signing professionally with the Los Angeles Dodgers after the 1998 season. Collins went on the play eight seasons in the minor leagues, reaching AAA with both the Seattle Mariners and New York Mets.

A slick-fielding shortstop, Collins saw action in 176 games as a Sun Devil, batting .264 over his three seasons. Collins helped lead the Devils to the Atlantic Regional Final in 1997 against Miami and the College World Series in 1998, where ASU finished as the national runner-up. After a memorable performance in Omaha, Collins was named to the All-College World Series team and was offered a contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers following the 1998 season.

Over a successful eight-year professional playing career, Collins was a member of championship teams with the San Bernardino Stampede (Dodgers/A) in 2000 and Jacksonville Suns (Dodgers/AA) in 2001.

A Phoenix native and prep standout at Mountain Pointe High School, Mike and his wife Joannie reside in El Mirage, AZ with their daughter, Mia.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Michael is an enthusiastic young man who has a passion for life and baseball. He has always been a student of the game. Michael will be an asset to any team or organization that he is a part of. He has always strived to be the best and being a part of Sun Devil Baseball is a great opportunity that he will no doubt succeed in.

— Former ASU teammate Mike Lopez

"Michael showed up every day to play and had fun doing it. He loves the game."

— Former ASU teammate Chip Gosewisch

"Michael Collins is the perfect example of someone that certainly got the most out of his skills. He is a gamer. Not only was he a gifted player that always gave his best, but he also has an incredible ability to nurture, teach, train and pass on his baseball knowledge."

— Logan White, Asst. GM, LA Dodgers

KENNY McCARTY

Sports Medicine

Kenny McCarty begins his tenth year as the primary Certified Athletic Trainer for the Arizona State baseball program. McCarty is responsible for the daily prevention, evaluation, treatment, and rehabilitation of the Sun Devil baseball players' injuries. McCarty coordinates the overall healthcare of the Sun Devil baseball players utilizing team physicians, orthopedic physicians, optometrists, nutritionists, sport psychologists, as well as various other specialists.

McCarty also implements a year-round program for the Sun Devil pitchers. A part of each practice is set aside to do specific flexibility, core strengthening, agility, balance, and arm care exercises. Injury prevention is the goal of the program.

An extremely valuable resource for the baseball program with his extensive knowledge of baseball-related injuries, McCarty has successfully rehabilitated multiple pitchers from Tommy John surgery. This includes former Sun Devil pitcher Mike Esposito, who made his Major League debut in 2005 with the Colorado Rockies.

McCarty also was responsible for the rehabilitation of current Sun Devil shortstop Andrew Romine. Romine underwent a first rib resection in January 2006 after suffering a blood clot in his throwing arm. He was able to return to the field three and a half months post-surgery.

McCarty also presented "Special Conditioning and Rehabilitation Concepts for the Collegiate Pitcher" at the 2001 ASMI Injuries in Baseball Course in Phoenix hosted by notable baseball orthopedist Dr. James Andrews.

McCarty graduated in 1996 from Purdue University in West Lafayette, IN with a BA in Athletic Training. He is currently pursuing a MA in Rehabilitation Sciences from California University of Pennsylvania.

A native of Fremont, Ind., McCarty is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association, Rocky Mountain Athletic Trainers Association, and Arizona Athletic Trainers Association. He enjoys fishing and outdoor activities. He is a huge fan of NASCAR and the 2006 American League Champion Detroit Tigers. McCarty is single and resides in Chandler.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Kenny has a rare trust & confidence in his skills and abilities that is equal to any trainer I've experienced at the major or minor league levels."

— Dr. Roger McCoy, Team Physician for the Arizona Diamondbacks and ASU athletics

"Kenny is an invaluable part of our program. What he has done rehabbing our pitchers and some of our other players, getting them both healthy physically and mentally tough, is truly amazing."

— Head Coach Pat Murphy

Operations & Video Assistant

Steve Kirkman begins his ninth year in the Arizona State Baseball program and his third as the operations and video assistant. Kirkman brings an array of knowledge in assisting the coaching and support staff with the general operations of the baseball program. He helps Coach

Murphy with daily office activities, and assists with several team and statistical analysis projects each year. Kirkman manages the equipment inventory and distributes all equipment as well.

With his technical expertise, Kirkman is also responsible for the audio/visual aspects of the baseball program. He oversees the video operations throughout the season, allowing coaches and players the opportunity to review footage from practices and games. He is in charge of creating a highlight video at the end of the year to showcase the season's accomplishments. Kirkman also oversees the in-game music and other areas of fan involvement during home games and events.

Kirkman assists with Coach Murphy's All Nine Baseball Academy throughout the year, and helps run the "Sandlot All-Stars," a program under Murphy's PTM Program for Youth that provides baseball and life skills for young children in Tempe and the surrounding area.

Before becoming the operations and video assistant, Kirkman held several duties as the team's manager. On the field, he was responsible for field preparation and assisting the coaches during daily practices. Kirkman's responsibilities extended into the recruiting process as well, maintaining the recruiting database and providing assistance with recruit correspondence.

Originally from Spring Valley, CA, Kirkman came to ASU in the Fall of 1998 upon graduating with distinction from Monte Vista High School, alongside former Sun Devil infielder and current Houston Astros prospect Brooks Conrad, where he began his baseball experience as a manager for the Monarch baseball team. His academic career continued at Arizona State University, in which he graduated from the W.P. Carey School of Business with a B.S. in Accountancy in just 3½ years.

RANDY POLICAR

Media Relations

Randy Policar begins his second season as the sports information director for Arizona State baseball. He serves in the same capacity for the ASU women's volleyball team, as well as assists with Sun Devil football. Policar acts as the official scorekeeper for home games, as well as compiling statistics, writing press releases and the media guide and keeping the official website up to date.

Policar graduated from ASU in 2002 with a degree in broadcasting from the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication. As an undergrad, he spent four years in the Sports Information office as a student assistant as well as a co-host of a sports talk show on the campus radio station The Blaze. Prior to returning to ASU, Policar spent three seasons with the Arizona Rattlers of the Arena Football League, going to two ArenaBowls during his tenure in the AFL. He interned for the Arizona Diamondbacks during their 2001 World Series Championship season, and has also worked for the Phoenix Suns and various radio and television stations around Phoenix. He was also the Public Address Announcer for both the WNBA's Phoenix Mercury and the Arizona Rattlers.

A native of Seattle, Washington, Policar graduated from Issaquah High School in 1998, where he served as the baseball manager, assistant girls basketball coach and SID. He and his wife Leslie reside in Tempe.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"While Randy was with the Arizona Rattlers his professionalism made my job tremendously easier. ASU is truly lucky to have his attributes and work ethic on their staff."

— Gene Nudo, Head Coach and General Manager, Arizona Rattlers

"Randy is one of the most pleasant, competent people I have ever worked with, but best of all, he's a true-blue Sun Devil!"

— Danny White, Sun Devil legend and former Dallas Cowboys quarterback

GOOSE GOSEWISCH

Ballpark Operations

Goose Gosewisch begins his first season with ASU Baseball in charge of stadium and grounds operations. Involved in Arizona youth baseball for almost two decades, Goose will now oversee all functions at Winkles Field-Packard Stadium at Brock Ballpark.

As an amateur in Minnesota, Gosewisch played on American Legion All-Star teams with Cameron Killebrew and Jim Kaat, Jr. and was later signed out of high school by the Minnesota Twins in 1972.

Gosewisch moved to Arizona in 1988 and started coaching youth baseball. His teams won Babe Ruth State Championships in 1991 and 1992, and a Babe Ruth National Championship in 1992. Gosewisch also volunteered with the Horizon High School baseball program in which his son, Ian's, team won a State Championship in 1995. He has also helped coach a National 17 & under AAU team in 1994 and 1995.

Gosewisch was instrumental in the start up of two Valley baseball establishments — Arizona World of Baseball (Tempe) and Cleats Baseball & Softball Specialists (Glendale).

Gosewisch has two sons who have played baseball at ASU. Ian "Chip" Gosewisch (1996-1999) earned several team awards, was a 1997 All-Regional selection and drafted by the Anaheim Angels in 1999. James "Tuffy" Gosewisch (2002-2005) was a two-time All-Regional selection, On Deck Circle MVP, was drafted by Philadelphia Phillies in 2005 and is beginning his third professional season in 2007. His wife, Nancy, is currently the VP of Operations at Cleats Baseball & Softball Specialists.

In addition to his on-field responsibilities, Gosewisch is heavily involved with Pat Murphy's All Nine Baseball Academy and Sandlot programs..

DR. MICHAEL CROW

University President

Michael M. Crow became the 16th president of Arizona State University on July 1, 2002. He is guiding the transformation of ASU into one of the nation's leading public metropolitan research universities, one that is directly engaged in the economic, social, and cultural vitality of its region. Under his direction the university pursues teaching, research, and creative excellence focused on the major intellectual questions of our time, as well as those central to the building of a sustainable environment and economy for Arizona. He has committed the university to global engagement, and to setting a new standard for public service.

Since he took office, ASU has marked a number of important milestones, including the establishment of the Biodesign Institute at ASU; the initiation of many new interdisciplinary research initiatives; the groundbreaking and planning of more than 1 million-square-feet of new state-of-the-art research facilities; and the announcement of two $50 million gifts, endowing the W. P. Carey School of Business, and the Ira A. Fulton School of Engineering, and a $10 million gift to establish the Virginia G. Piper Center for Creative Writing.

Prior to joining ASU, he was executive vice provost of Columbia University, where he also was professor of science and technology policy in the School of International and Public Affairs. Dr. Crow oversaw Columbia's research enterprise, technology and innovation transfer operations, strategic initiative program, and interdisciplinary program development.

He played the lead role in the creation of the Columbia Earth Institute (CEI), and helped found the Center for Science, Policy and Outcomes (CSPO) in Washington, D.C., a think tank dedicated to linking science and technology to desired social, economic, and environmental outcomes.

He is the author of books and articles relating to the analysis of research organizations, technology transfer, science and technology policy, and the practice and theory of public policy.

LISA LOVE

Vice President For University Athletics

On Saturday, April 23, 2005, Arizona State University President Michael Crow selected Lisa Love of the University of Southern California to serve as the new Vice President for University Athletics. She began in that capacity July 1, 2005.

In June, prior to her ASU arrival, Love had planned to climb 14,162-foot Mount Shasta in Northern California, adding yet another accomplishment to an already impressive personal resume. But the opportunity to assume the athletic director's chair at ASU postponed those plans, perhaps to another year. A trailblazer her entire career, Love is now poised for the most challenging and fulfilling climb of her professional life.

Love became ASU's 21st athletic director (17th full-time) after taking over for Christine Wilkinson, who is a senior vice president for the university and had been serving as interim athletic director since April 8. Former athletic director Gene Smith left the university April 8 for a similar post at The Ohio State University.

Love moved part-time into administration in 1991, then full-time after the 1998 season. She became a Senior Associate Athletic Director in 2002.

At USC she handled the day-to-day supervision of eight sports—including women's basketball, volleyball, tennis and men's and women's swimming and diving—and monitored all women's sports at the university. She was active in the department's strategic planning, gender equity, civil rights and NCAA certification issues and she served on the NCAA Management Council. She also served two stints (1992-93 and 2001-02) as vice president of the Pacific-10 Conference.

As a coach, Love was a master teacher at the pinnacle of her profession. She compiled an impressive 404-171 as a college head coach for 17 seasons at Texas Arlington (199-78 from 1982-88) and USC (205-93 from 1989-98). At USC, she led the Trojans to nine NCAA tournament berths and eight finishes in the national Top 15. She was selected as the Pac-10 Co-Coach of the Year in 1997. She was national Coach of the Year in 1988 when Arlington went 30-4 and fell one win shy of the Final Four.

A tremendous athlete as volleyball player in her own right, Love is also a member of the Texas Tech University and Texas Arlington athletic Halls of Fame. As a student-athlete, Love was a four-year volleyball starter and an all-region performer at Texas Tech. She earned a bachelor's degree (1978) in physical education from Texas Tech and a master's degree (1985) in education administration from the University of North Texas.

Love also compiled a 79-40 record as head coach at Bowie High School (1978-82) in Arlington, Texas.

Love also mentored some of the finest volleyball coaching talent in the nation. Among her proteges are head volleyball coaches at Texas (Jerritt Elliott), South Carolina (Nancy Somera), New Mexico (Kelley KcKee), Indiana (Katie Weismiller) and Idaho (Debbie Buchanan).

ASU President Michael Crow said Love brings qualities and experience that will carry ASU's Athletic Department to championships and excellence.

"We conducted an extensive search through an excellent pool of national candidates and interviewed many candidates, including several sitting athletic directors of BCS Conference schools," Crow said. "Lisa was our first choice. Lisa has the energy, competitiveness and drive to move ASU's Athletic Department onto the next level. Her philosophy for success will be instrumental in building ASU's Athletic Department through student achievement, community engagement and winning."

Love said her experience and President Crow's vision for the university will serve as her foundation as she steps into her new role at ASU.

Love plans to establish model programs at ASU by embracing the traditions of ASU and aggressively pursuing championships.

"Having been involved with a competitor of Arizona State University, I am well-aware of the talented people who work in the Athletic Department and the tradition they bring to this university's sports program," she said. "In order to make this an ideal program, we will need the leadership of our master teachers - our coaches, and the achievement, both on the field and in the classroom, of our student athletes."

Community members and university representatives applauded the selection of Love as ASU's new Vice President of University Athletics.

"It's a great hire," Ed Robson, CEO of Robson Communities and a member of the Sun Angel Board, said. "She comes from a great program at USC and she helped build that program. She is a winner with a lot of energy and dedication."

"I spent three years coaching with Lisa at USC," said Randy Lein, the Sun Devil Men's Golf Coach. "She is a genuinely good person. When I heard her name, I knew she'd be a great hire. I'm very excited and happy it worked out for her."

At ASU, Love serves as the senior administrative officer of the university's athletic program and reports directly to Crow. The program features 12 women's and 10 men's sports, including men's and women's basketball, golf, swimming and diving, tennis, track/field and cross country; women's gymnastics, soccer, softball, volleyball, and water polo; baseball, football and wrestling.

Love is responsible for the management and development on one of the finest and most comprehensive athletic physical plants in the nation at ASU, playing host to nearly 1 million patrons each year. ASU's athletic staff includes more than 180 full and part-time coaches and administrative and support personnel who provide services to about 500 student-athletes.

Love has two sisters, Shannon Goddard and Debbie Dalton. Her parents are Tom and Jeanne Love of Arlington, Texas.

TWO-WAY PLAYERS

ASU has had large success with players at multiple positions. Two-way players have thrived under Coach Murphy since 1995 and have been an instrumental part of the program's success. With scholarship money limited to 11.7 awards, having a player that can successfully handle multiple positions has been a huge bonus - both for the program and the individual player.

Recent two-way players include:

Mike Leake	RHP/OF	2007-P
Matt Spencer	OF/LHP	2007-P
CJ Retherford	RHP/C/IF	2006-P

Q&A WITH ASU BASEBALL

Q: What are the fundamental values that surround ASU Baseball?

A: Our guys understand how this great game is meant to be played — with a passion. And each member of our program will come to a clear understanding of what it means to be part of a team. We have several different personalities on our team, but each student-athlete realizes the importance of coming together to accomplish our common goal of a national championship. The guys respect our great tradition, respect one another and respect this game.

Q: What are the keys to recruiting quality student-athletes to the Sun Devil baseball program?

A: Our great tradition enables us to recruit the entire country and land players from any state. We want great players that will be excited to represent ASU, but we are also very interested in our recruits having outstanding personal character in addition to exceptional baseball talent. The young men currently in our program are first-class people brought in with those same traits mentioned above, and they are the ones that ultimately sell our program. When recruits visit campus and get a chance to see our team dynamic, they get excited to be a part of it. We have a great school, great facilities and wonderful people working in our athletic department, but it all comes down to the student-athletes currently in place. They make recruits feel comfortable about the program.

Q: How is recruiting affected by professional baseball?

A: We recruit the very best student-athletes in the nation, so we always anticipate that about half of these players will choose signing a professional baseball contract over playing college baseball. Therefore, after the draft has hit, our typical recruiting class of 20 players will then be reduced to 10 players who will actually matriculate at ASU. Players like Jimmy Rollins, Dontrelle Willis, Prince Fielder, Paul Konerko and Jon Lester are prime examples of guys who committed to ASU for baseball but then signed professionally and are enjoying success in the big leagues. Sometimes you take a chance on a high profile recruit and every few years one of those guys ends up on campus and is a marquee player for us. But we also spend countless hours identifying a recruit that may not be ready for professional baseball, but has the opportunity to develop into a complete player during three of four years in college before making the jump into the pro ranks. Dustin Pedroia — comes to mind. His college experience helped him develop as a player, but also as a person and a teammate and he entered professional baseball ready both physically and mentally. Due to his development in college, Dustin is in the big leagues less than two years after he signed a professional contract.

Q: What are the unique graduation challenges for the Sun Devil baseball player?

A: Our players are eligible for the professional baseball draft after their junior year, and over the last 10 years, 65 of our juniors have been drafted. Since the year following a player's junior season is his best opportunity for bargaining leverage in the draft, this is the ideal time for these players to sign a professional contract. Thus, 85 percent of these juniors have signed professionally and foregone their senior year of college. Once a student-athlete enters minor league baseball, our academic advisors continue to help with the logistics involved with taking classes. We believe the key here is to stay on track for graduation in the student-athlete's first three years at ASU, and in most cases take extra classes in the summer or winter session in order to get ahead. Several of our student-athletes have taken advantage of our academic resources and have been able to complete their degree while playing professional baseball. Current major leaguer Willie Bloomquist is a perfect example of someone who got ahead before signing and completed his degree during the off-season. Above any reason to pick ASU as a college, obtaining a college degree is a student-athlete's primary objective as soon as they arrive on campus. We're fortunate that almost all of our guys get an opportunity to play baseball after college, but we want to make sure every measure is taken to help them complete the coursework and graduate from ASU.

Q: What is the philosophy behind playing one of the toughest schedules year in and year out?

A: We've become synonymous with playing a challenging schedule and it's something that our student-athletes look forward to when they enter the program. The challenge that comes with playing the top teams in the country week in and week out helps us to develop as a team as the year progresses. Come postseason time, there really isn't a situation that we haven't been in over the course of the regular season. We'll schedule tournaments both on the road and at home to help us adjust to playing at odd times, at neutral sites, being the visiting team in our home ballpark, quick turn-around times, etc — all of which we could face in a regional. We'll schedule road series in front of big crowds so that our guys get a taste of playing away from the friendly confines of our home ballpark. When you get to a Super Regional or Omaha, it really helps to have developed the mental toughness it takes to block out distractions on the road — whether it's playing on a different surface, dealing with hostile fans, weather — and just focus on playing the game.

Q: How will the uniform start date for college baseball, beginning in 2008, affect ASU?

A: Next year, the last Friday in February will become the uniform opening day for college baseball. The biggest change for schools in warm weather areas will be the consolidation of our season. In essence, we will begin playing 3-4 weeks later than we have typically started in the past. Since the end of the season is not moving back, we will now play up to five games each week. It will certainly be an adjustment for us, but the chance to play on a more regular basis and the exposure our sport will receive are both exciting. Pitching will be an area we really emphasize in recruiting because 4 or 5 starters and a deep bullpen will be necessary each week. Playing on a more regular basis also gives our position players a chance to stay sharp and develop. TV networks also have the chance to broadcast some strong non-conference match-ups on Tuesdays and Wednesdays and generate more excitement for our sport.

Q: What do ASU players do during the summer months?

A: Most of our student-athletes will participate in various summer collegiate baseball leagues across the country. The summer leagues offer a chance to play 30-40 additional games after the conclusion of the NCAA season. This extra playing time is critical to player development in our program. The leagues we place our players in (Alaskan, Cape Cod, Northwoods, etc.) are highly competitive and provide an enjoyable experience for the student-athlete. They also use wood bats and play every day so this experience gives valuable insight on how life in the minor leagues will be. We're also fortunate to have several of our recent student-athletes selected to play for the USA Baseball National Team. Hundreds of major leaguers have participated in these same leagues or Team USA during their amateur careers.

Q: With only 11.7 baseball scholarships to offer an entire team, how does ASU help student-athletes pay for the cost of a college education?

A: Baseball scholarship money is so limited that we've had to come up with additional ways for families to help cover the cost of their son's college education. Scholarship money is such a key piece of the recruiting process, but we've also been able to develop a job program that has been used by several members of our team. Working with our compliance office and following NCAA guidelines that relate to student-athlete employment, we have part-time jobs available that allow several members of our team to make money to offset college related expenses. Most of the jobs take place at ASU and allow the student-athlete a chance to develop professional relationships and build valuable work experience for a resume. We also work very closely with the financial aid offices on campus to identify academic or merit scholarships and grants that an incoming recruit would qualify for.

Q: Does ASU ever have any "walk-on" players?

A: We do, and the walk-on player has become a valuable part of our program. Being a good college baseball player is not about scholarships, it's about commitment. The 1998 ASU team that played for the national championship featured six walk-ons in starting roles. Year in and year out, players that do not receive portions of the 11.7 baseball scholarships make impactful contributions on the field. Notable walk-on players in recent years include All-American Jeff Larish and Pac-10 Players of the Year Casey Myers and Dustin Pedroia. And because the recruiting process is so complicated, we also hold an open-tryout each fall for the students of ASU. 2002 All-Regional catcher Cesar Castillo and 2003 Boston Red Sox 3rd round draft selection Beau Vaughan both participated in the open campus tryout.

THE ASU BASEBALL LIFESTYLE

Creating a successful student-athlete experience

SCHOLARSHIPS BACKGROUND

Every Division I college baseball program is allowed to offer 11.7 scholarships. Prior to 1973, there were no restrictions on scholarship money, but from 1973-1976, 19 was the limit, later dropping to 13 in 1976. In 1993, the NCAA established the current limit of 11.7 that remains in place today.

Several states around the nation have in-state financial aid programs that Arizona does not offer. Schools in Georgia, Louisiana, South Carolina, Florida, Nevada and Tennessee have financial aid programs that award all students meeting set academic criteria out of high school in-state tuition and stipends that do not count against the 11.7 baseball scholarship limit. The scholarships are available for any student enrolling in the school and are issued through the state government, not the specific institution. Schools in these states are then able to use athletic scholarship awards and in-state financial aid programs to build their team each year — in essence increasing the amount of money available to recruit with.

Despite not having similar in-state financial aid programs, ASU baseball has been able to successfully recruit from all over the nation.

JOB PROGRAM

ASU baseball has developed a job program that allows student-athletes to work and earn money to use for college expenses not covered by an athletic or academic scholarship. With only 11.7 scholarships to spread out to an entire roster, the job program has become a vital part of ASU baseball's ability to assist families with the cost of a college education. The jobs that our student-athletes participate in are consistent with the rules and regulations set forth by the NCAA as it pertains to student-athlete employment.

Current student-athletes are stressed the importance of time management and organize their day to include class work, practice and a few hours spent at a part-time job. Many of the jobs available take place on campus and allow the student-athlete to work in an area that he has a career interest in. ASU provides a variety of work-study and part-time job opportunities throughout various departments on campus.

Over the course of the academic year, the student-athlete is able to develop valuable professional skills and relationships, build their resume, and earn the financial equivalent of a common baseball scholarship. Many scholarship student-athletes also have the opportunity to participate in the job program to earn additional financial resources

HOUSING

A healthy team dynamic is the most important principle within the ASU baseball program. Both on and off the field, relationships are built, respect is earned and lifelong friendships arise from the daily interaction with teammates. Most ASU baseball student-athletes will live among teammates during their time at ASU at off-campus rental properties used by baseball student-athletes.

In order to have a cost effective, comfortable and enjoyable living situation, ASU baseball student-athletes choose to live in off-campus rental homes or apartment complexes — both within walking distance to the ASU campus and baseball facility. Living off-campus still allows student-athletes to be in a neighborhood or apartment complex with other ASU students, but provides a safe and quiet environment for student-athletes to study and rest. These housing options offer a student-athlete a living situation that will provide adequate personal space and an enjoyable atmosphere to interact with ASU students and friends high school or junior college and many younger student-athletes have found the chance to live with someone who "knows what to expect" extremely valuable. Upperclassmen are able to develop leadership skills away from the field and help an incoming teammate enjoy the same smooth transition to ASU that he enjoyed a few years earlier.

NUTRITION

The baseball coaching staff regularly consults with a nutritionist to help identify healthy meal plans for our student-athletes. With most student-athletes living off-campus, providing information that allows these players to eat healthy is a key component to the overall baseball conditioning program. Most student-athletes will cook breakfast and dinner at home and eat lunch at one of the dozen cafeterias, restaurants or establishments located on campus. In addition, student-athletes can purchase a meal designed by the coaching and nutrition staff immediately following the conclusion of some mid-week practices.

ASU IN THE COMMUNITY

SANDLOT ALL-STARS:

In 1997, head baseball coach, Pat Murphy, created a non-profit foundation dedicated to bringing together a diverse group of young kids to learn about baseball, develop leadership skills, and take an active role in building relationships within their community. Thus, PTM Programs for Youth was born. Staffed by the coaches and student-athletes of the ASU baseball team, the program initially began as an after-school program for children in the South Tempe town of Guadalupe. Baseball was the venue used, but the lessons revolved around the development of various life skills and the importance of education. In the fall of 2006, the program was relocated to accommodate a larger group of children throughout the Phoenix metropolitan area and took on the name, Sandlot All-Stars.

THE IMPORTANCE OF COMMUNITY: In a rapidly expanding and diverse city like the Phoenix metropolitan area, never has community building been more important. One of the fundamental goals of PTM Programs for Youth is helping kids understand not only the value of healthy and interactive communities, but how they themselves can become a contributing force in its positive development. Kids involved with the Sandlot All-Stars take part in community development programs and participate directly delivering donations to various causes such as Autism research, Niemann-Pick research, and homeless shelters. The children's direct involvement offers a unique opportunity to see how they can play an important role in the betterment of their community, and will help them develop a philanthropic and altruistic attitude at a very young age.

THE IMPORTANCE OF LEADERSHIP SKILLS: Developing confidence and leadership skills in our community's children has an immeasurable value as we move forward into the 21st century. Kids participating in the PTM Programs for Youth are exposed to a variety of community leaders and sports personalities, as well as mentoring from the student-athletes of Arizona State University. Exposure to these kinds of diverse, success driven people has a tremendous impact on the kids of the PTM programs as they begin to seek out role models and envision their own futures.

THE IMPORTANCE OF ATHLETICS: With more than 25 years of coaching experience, Pat Murphy brings both extensive knowledge and enthusiasm to the art of teaching baseball to young children. However, the PTM Programs do more than just teach kids how to hit, catch and throw a baseball. Coach Murphy takes great pride in also teaching kids the rich and timeless traditions of the game; everything from what to do during the National Anthem, to how to behave with class and dignity on and off the field. In addition to learning the core fundamentals of the game, Coach Murphy helps the PTM kids develop healthy life skills in dealing with both winning and losing and most importantly — how to be a great teammate. Baseball will always be the primary sport, however, PTM kids will also be exposed to a variety of other sports throughout the year.

COMMUNITY APPEARANCES:

Several times throughout the year, Sun Devil baseball student-athletes are requested to participate in various Phoenix charities and outreach programs. In recent years, the program has assisted with the Susan G. Komen Foundation's Race for the Cure and 3-Day program, Phoenix Children's Hospital, Civitan House and also made appearances to local schools to speak to students about drug and tobacco awareness.

RULES OF THE GAME

Arizona State University is strongly committed to conducting its overall athletic program according to the official rules and regulations of the NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference. Within the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, the Office of Compliance is responsible for coordinating and monitoring all aspects of these rules and regulations.

As an athletic representative of Arizona State University, you, too, must abide by all NCAA rules and regulations, as Arizona State University is held responsible for all actions related to its prospective student-athletes and/or enrolled student-athletes.

We thank you for your continued support in our effort to succeed both academically and athletically. While this information does not contain all the applicable NCAA rules and regulations, it should serve as a guide. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call Jody Smith in the Office of Compliance at (480) 965-5943.

Remember to always ask before you act, as your action may jeopardize the eligibility of a prospective or enrolled student-athlete.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR REPRESENTATIVES OF ASU ATHLETICS INTEREST REGARDING NCAA RULES & REGULATIONS

You are a Representative of ASU Athletics Interest if you have:

- participated in or are a member of an organization promoting ASU athletics' program;
- contributed to the athletics department or any of its booster clubs;
- assisted or have been requested by the athletics staff to assist in the recruitment of prospective student-athletes;
- assisted in providing benefits to enrolled student-athletes or their families; or
- been involved in otherwise promoting the ASU athletics program.

ONCE AN INDIVIDUAL IS IDENTIFIED AS A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE INSTITUTION'S ATHLETICS INTEREST, THE PERSON RETAINS THAT IDENTITY INDEFINITELY.

A Prospective Student-Athlete is one who:

- has started ninth grade;
- is enrolled in a two-year college;
- has officially withdrawn from a four-year college;
- was recruited by ASU staff; or
- has not started ninth grade but has received financial assistance from the institution.

Representatives of ASU Athletics Interest MAY NOT:

- get involved in the recruitment of prospective student-athletes (i.e., telephone or write them or their parents, legal guardian(s) or relatives);
- provide extra benefits (i.e., discounts, gifts, transportation) to prospective student-athletes, enrolled student-athletes or their parents, legal guardian(s), relatives or friends; and
- provide any financial assistance to prospective student-athletes, enrolled student-athletes or their parents, legal guardian(s), relatives or friends.

Lyla Clerry
Assistant Athletic Director, Compliance

Representatives of ASU Athletics Interest MAY:

- send newspaper clippings and other information about prospective student-athletes to coaches;
- continue established family relationships with friends and neighbors that have prospective student-athlete aged children;
- offer summer employment to prospective student-athletes who have signed a National Letter of Intent and to enrolled student-athletes after contacting the Office of Compliance; and
- offer an occasional meal on a special occasion to a student-athlete or team at your home with prior approval from the Head Coach and Office of Compliance.
