Graduate Assistants: Charles Ragle (Offense) and Josh Brown (Defense)

Head Coach Dirk Koetter

Enters his sixth season at the helm of the Arizona State program ... Koetter holds a 33-28 record in five years guiding the Sun Devils, and the team's 17-8 record throughout its past 25 games ranks third in the Pac-10 Conference, trailing only Southern California and California ... Has led ASU to bowl games three times in his first five seasons, including bowl wins in back-to-back seasons (Vitalis Sun Bowl in 2004 and Insight in 2005) for the first time in nearly 20 years ... Acting as his own offensive coordinator during his first five years, he has firmly established the Sun Devils among the nation's offensive leaders. ASU has averaged 31.5 points per game over the last five years, while it has been ranked in the Top 20 in the nation in passing offense in each of the last four seasons (third in 2005, fifth in 2004, 20th in 2003 and ninth in 2002) ... The 2005 season was highlighted by several individual and team milestone performances, as ASU finished the season with a 7-5 record, which was capped off by a 45-40 victory over Rutgers in the 2005 Insight Bowl played in Phoenix ... Wide Receiver Derek Hagan concluded his career as perhaps the greatest at his position in both Arizona State and Pac-10 Conference history. Hagan ended his Sun Devil career as the all-time leader in Pac-10 history in receptions, and ranks second all-time in receiving yards and seventh on the career receiving touchdowns list ... ASU turned in a 9-3 record and was ranked 19th and 20th in the final national polls in 2004 ... Led the Pac-10 and ranked fifth in the nation in passing offense in 2004 (317.3 yards per game) ... In 2002 he led the Sun Devils to an 8-6 record, a third-place Pac-10 finish and a berth in the 2002 Pacific Life Holiday Bowl ... His 2002 team ranked ninth in the nation in passing offense and 20th in scoring offense ... Became Arizona State's 21st head coach on Dec. 2, 2000 ... His 2001 ASU offense finished 25th in the country in total offense and tied for 19th in scoring offense ... Had the third-longest winning streak in the country with eight consecutive wins (his last seven at Boise State and his season opener at ASU) before falling at Stanford on 9/22/01 ... Throughout his five-year tenure, Koetter has directed ASU's all-time leading passer in Andrew Walter, its top career receiver in Derek Hagan, as well as Koetter's only unanimous All-American honoree Terrell Suggs, who in 2002 established the NCAA single-season record with 24 sacks. Additionally, Suggs (2002) and Dale Robinson (2005) earned Pac-10 Conference Pat Tillman Defensive Player of the Year honors under Koetter's guidance. Also, each Sun Devil team during Koetter's Sun Devil career has showcased a 1,000-yard receiver. Prior to Koetter's arrival in Tempe in 2001, only four times in ASU history a receiver had surpassed the 1,000-yard mark in a single season ... Koetter came to ASU after three seasons at Boise State where he led the Broncos to a 26-10 record, two appearances in the Humanitarian Bowl and two Big West Championships ... Two-time Big West Coach of the Year ... His 2000 Boise State team led the nation in scoring offense, was second in total offense and ranked fourth in the country in passing offense ... Guided BSU to its first winning season in Division I football ... Served as the honorary chairman of the National Multiple Sclerosis Desert Southwest Chapter "Walk on the Wild Side" in 2002 and 2003 ... Last name is pronounced "Cutter"... Born Feb. 5, 1959 in Pocatello, Idaho.

Miller Named Playboy All-American

Arizona State University junior tight end Zach Miller (Phoenix, Ariz.) has been recognized as a 2006 Playboy Magazine All-American. Miller is just the 14th Sun Devil in history to earn the prestigious honor. Last season, former ASU wide receiver Derek Hagan (Palmdale, Calif.) was honored in the preseason as a Playboy Magazine All-American.

After his freshman season, Miller earned second-team All-America honors, just one of four freshmen to earn first team or second-team All-American accolades that season. Miller also earned first-team Freshman All-American accolades for his successful 2004 season. In 2004, he was named the Pacific-10 Conference Freshman of the Year, becoming just the second Sun Devil to earn the honor (Terrell Suggs, 2000).

As a freshman, Miller broke the ASU record for receptions in a season by a tight end with 56. His 56 receptions in 2004 tied for the most receptions in the NCAA by a tight end. Along with his 56 receptions, he tallied 552 receiving yards and six touchdowns. In 2005, Miller missed some time with an injury and still managed the team's third-highest amount of receptions with 38, four of which were touchdowns. He also recorded 476 receiving yards for an average of 12.5 yards per reception.

Other Sun Devils named to the Playboy Magazine All-American Team were: Ron Pritchard (1968), Woody Green (1973), Mike Richardson (1981, '82), Vernon Maxwell (1982), David Fulcher (1985), Randall McDaniel (1987), Nathan LaDuke (1990), Shante Carver (1993), Craig Newsome (1994), Juan Roque (1996), Bruce Snyder (1997 Coach of the Year), Grey Ruegamer (1998) and Derek Hagan (2004).

Sam I Am

Senior Sam Keller, who recorded 2,165 passing yards (155-264) and threw for 20 touchdowns last season before missing the last five games due to a thumb injury on his throwing hand, returns as ASU's starting signal caller in 2006.

Last season Keller joined an elite list, becoming only the sixth quarterback in ASU history to throw 20 or more touchdowns in a season. His 20 touchdown passes last season were tied for the eighth most in a single season in school history. Keller's 669 yards in the first two games of 2005 (vs. Tempe and vs. LSU) set the school record (for first two games of a season), previously held by Jeff Krohn who had 637 combined yards in the first two games of 2001 (San Diego State and Stanford). With 56 attempts and no interceptions vs. No. 5 LSU (9/10/05), he also broke Paul Justin's record for consecutive attempts without an interception in a single game (51 vs. Houston, 1990). Keller had a string of 131 consecutive pass attempts without an INT snapped against top-ranked USC on Oct. 1, falling just six short of breaking the school record set by Mike Pagel in 1980.

In his eight career starts, Keller has thrown at least two touchdowns seven times, three or more touchdowns five times and a career-best four touchdowns four times. He set career marks with 35 completions, 56 attempts and 461 yards against No. 5 LSU (9/10). His 461 yards were the ninth-best single-game performance in school history, while he has also tied for eighth on the ASU single-game chart with the aforementioned four-touchdown games four times last season.

2006 Spring Notes

Carpenter Proves Himself More Than Capable

Having more than one capable quarterback is a luxury that few big-time collegiate programs enjoy. Last season Arizona State found out how important that luxury was when then redshirt freshman Rudy Carpenter came in to replace the injured Sam Keller with five games left in the season. In addition to leading ASU to a 4-1 record, Carpenter also managed to compile a passer efficiency rating of 175.0, which led not only the Pac-10, but the nation as well.

"I'm the happiest guy in America," said Arizona State head coach Dirk Koetter about having two capable starting quarterbacks. "We have two great quarterbacks ... Don't you wish we had this problem at every position? How good would we be? It is the greatest thing in the world."

In his five starts last season, Carpenter completed 156 of 228 passes for 2,273 yards, 17 touchdowns and just two interceptions on the year. He completed 68.4-percent of his passes and averaged 252.6 passing yards per game.

Carpenter completed 23 of 35 passes for 467 yards, four touchdowns and no interceptions in ASU's 45-40 Insight Bowl victory over Rutgers despite playing with a separated left shoulder which he suffered in the first quarter. Carpenter won Insight Bowl game Most Valuable Offensive Player accolades for that performance.

Carpenter, who selected to the Sporting News' Pac-10 All-Freshman Team and Honorable Mention Freshman All-America last season, connected on 27-of-34 passing for 401 yards and three throwing touchdowns, as well as one on the ground, to lead ASU to a 44-20 victory over Washington in his first collegiate start (Oct. 29) and followed that with a 28-of-43, 381-yard outing at Washington State one week later.

Burgess Takes on Bigger Workload

Last season Rudy Burgess proved to be one of the top all-around threats when he had the football in his hands. An honorable mention All-Pac-10 selection last season, Burgess finished ninth in the Pac-10 with an average of 121.6 yards per game. In addition to the yards he gained rushing (644), receiving (655) and returning kicks (160 yards), Burgess also threw a touchdown pass last season.

This spring Burgess also added cornerback duties to his already extraordinary workload. Burgess has a history in the defensive backfield, and was originally recruited as a cornerback, where he was the No. 50 cornerback in the nation in 2003, according to Rivals.com. Due to the team's lack of experience at the position, spring drills provided Burgess ample opportunities to showcase his abilities in ways he has not been able to during his Sun Devil career. At the conclusion of spring football, ASU head coach Dirk Koetter said he was pleased with how Burgess performed, however added that in an ideal world he'd like to see Burgess more on the offensive side of the ball.

"I'm very pleased with how that went (with Burgess playing CB) because now I know Rudy can play three positions," said Koetter. "I know he can play tailback, I know he can play wide receiver and I know he can play corner and that is going to give us a lot of flexibility in the fall in terms of how we plug him in."

"(Junior) Justin Tryon and (junior) Chris Baloney are the real deal at cornerback," said Koetter. "I'm excited about (Tryon and Baloney). If they can get the job done then Rudy will be playing on offense. If we get in an injury situation then this spring will be very well worth the price of training him at corner. You can see when Rudy plays corner he is still a playmaker. He does not give up big plays. He is a smart football player and a really valuable guy to have."

Herring Returns Looking to Build on Solid Freshman Campaign

As a freshman last season, Keegan Herring led the Sun Devils and finished ninth in the Pac-10 in rushing with 870 yards on 158 carries (5.5 avg.). His season included six touchdowns and three 100-yard games. Against Arizona, he carried seven times for 20 yards to break the school freshman rushing record of 773 yards. Early last season, Herring, who rushed for 134 yards in his collegiate debut, collected 197 yards on 23 carries and two touchdowns against Northwestern to mark the fifth-highest single-game rushing performance in the nation by a true freshman in 2005. The performance against the Wildcats was the 22nd best in ASU single-game history and the most by a Sun Devil since Delvon Flowers rushed for 226 yards against Oregon State in 2001. Herring's 67-yard run in the first quarter was ASU's longest last season and the longest by a Sun Devil since a 74-yard rush by Flowers vs. Stanford in 2001. Herring was selected to the Sporting News' Pac-10 All-Freshman Team and Honorable Mention Freshman All-America. ASU is 243-46-5 (.838) in 294 career games when having a player gain at least 100 yards on the ground (12-8 under Dirk Koetter).

Just for Kicks

In his three years of place kicking for the Sun Devils, Jesse Ainsworth has made it a habit of being nearly perfect on PAT attempts, missing just three times in 121 tries. Dating back to the final game of the 2003 season when he connected on 4-of-4 PATs to start his current streak of 97 in a row, a school record. Ainsworth, who was a perfect 53-of-53 last season after going 40-of-40 in 2004, moved past former program record holder Luis Zendejas, who netted 75 from 1981-83. Ainsworth tied Zendejas' mark when he connected on a try following ASU's first touchdown against Oregon last season, a 20-yard strike to Derek Hagan from Sam Keller in the first quarter. In the third stanza, Keller hit Zach Miller for a 1-yard before Ainsworth hit home the record-breaking 76th PAT in a row. Ainsworth's 53 PATs last season put him fourth in ASU's record books for the most PATs made in a single season. Ainsworth's 37 field goals are fourth-most in a career and he needs two more to move into a tie for third. He also is just the sixth kicker in school annals to score 200 or more points as his 229 points are 14 behind Robert Nycz (1995-97) for third on the list.

2006 Spring Notes

T-Rich Leads Special Teams

Senior wide receiver Terry Richardson, who earned Second Team All-America honors last season from SI.com, was named the US Bank Pac-10 Special Teams Player of the Week for his performance in last season's game against USC and he was ranked as one of the top returners in the nation last season. His 84-yard punt return for a TD in the first quarter against USC (10/1) marked the first by a Sun Devil since current St. Louis Ram Shaun McDonald had a 78-yarder against USC on Nov. 4, 2000. It was the 10th-longest punt return in school history (9th-longest for a TD) and the longest by a Sun Devil since Eric Guliford had an 89-yarder against California in 1992. He followed that with a momentum-turning return of 71 yards against Arizona for a touchdown that tied the game in the fourth quarter, making him the sixth Sun Devil overall and first since Ron Washington (1977) to return a pair of kicks for touchdowns in a season. Richardson ended last season No. 2 in the Pac-10 and No. 7 in the nation with an average of 15.3 yards per punt return while also sitting third in the Pac-10 and No. 15 in the nation with an average of 27.4 yards on kickoff returns. On offense, Richardson finished last season fourth on the team with 37 catches for 495 yards (13.4 avg.) and five touchdowns.

A Cat-anese on the Prowl

Senior Zach Catanese wasted little time last season making the transition from junior college to Division I. The Shasta College transfer finished second on the team and fourth in the Pac-10 with 107 tackles (62 solo). The safety has also recorded one interception, 3.0 TFL and 2.0 sacks.

Did You Know?

With a 17-8 record Arizona State has the third-best record among Pac-10 schools in its last 25 games.

Rose Bowl Teams to be Recognized

The 20th and 10th anniversaries of Arizona State's 1986 and 1996 Rose Bowl teams, respectively, will be recognized this season when the Sun Devils take on Washington State on November 11 at Sun Devil Stadium.

Coached by John Cooper, the 1986 Sun Devils culminated their season with a 22-15 victory over Michigan in the 1987 Rose Bowl, the school's first ever Rose Bowl appearance. QB Jeff Van Raaphorst, the game's most valuable offensive player, threw for 193 yards and two touchdowns while the Sun Devil defense shutout the Wolverines in the second half to secure the victory.

Led by host of All-Americans including QB Jake Plummer and LB Derrick Rodgers, the Sun Devils made a return trip to Pasadena in 1996. Coach Bruce Snyder brought an undefeated Sun Devil team (11-0) into the Rose Bowl to take on Ohio State. A dramatic 11-yard touchdown run by Plummer with 1:40 remaining gave ASU a 17-14 lead and had the Sun Devils 100 seconds from laying their claim to the national championship. Unfortunately for the ASU faithful, a last-second touchdown by the Buckeyes denied the Sun Devils a dream ending to what had been a dream season in a 21-17 Ohio State victory.

In 2005, Arizona State University furthered its reputation as an offensive powerhouse en route to a 7-5 finish, and ASU's third postseason bowl game appearance during head coach Dirk Koetter's five-year tenure. Led by a bounty of offensive threats and an athletic defense, Koetter has high expectations for the Sun Devils in 2006, as the team continues to improve toward becoming a legitimate Pac-10 Conference championship contender. Also, the 2006 season marks the 10th and 20th anniversaries of ASU's two Pac-10 championship seasons and Rose Bowl berths, which followed the 1986 and 1996 seasons. Koetter eagerly awaits finding out whether the Sun Devils can build upon the 2005 season to have the ability to continue that championship trend in 2006.

"Looking back at last season, there are some aspects of our team about which we were tremendously satisfied, and some areas that needed improvement," Koetter said. "The bottom line is that we had 7-5 season, and ended it on a high note after defeating our rival Arizona and then Rutgers in the Insight Bowl to close out the season."

ASU's offense is driven by the lethal quarterback duo of senior Sam Keller and sophomore Rudy Carpenter. Also, versatile tailback/wide receiver/cornerback Rudy Burgess (junior), record-breaking tailback Keegan Herring (sophomore), dynamic wide receiver Jamaal Lewis (senior) and All-American tight end Zach Miller (junior) are main weapons among the Sun Devil offense.

Defensive tackle Jordan Hill (senior) and safeties Josh Barrett (junior) and Zach Catanese (senior) are the stalwarts of an improving Sun Devil defense.

OFFENSE

Last season, ASU had one of the most dominant offensive seasons in school history, highlighted by one of the most potent aerial attacks in college football. In 2005, the Sun Devils ranked in the top 10 in three major offensive categories: second in total offense (519.1), third in passing yards per game (373.4) and seventh in points per game (36.8). Also, ASU added greater balance to its offensive attack, rushing for the highest yards per game average (145.7) by a Sun Devil team since Koetter's debut season of 2001. As a team, ASU established new school records in completed passes (312), passing yards (4,481), passing yards per game and passing touchdowns (38). ASU's scoring average was the highest by a Sun Devil team since its historic Rose Bowl season of 1996, the team tripled its scoring production on the ground from the previous season (18 rushing touchdowns in 2005 to six in 2004) and for the third consecutive season, Sun Devil quarterbacks averaged less than one interception per game (11 interceptions in 12 games).

The 2006 ASU offense features record-setting athletes at several positions, and led by offensive guru Koetter, along with the addition of accomplished offensive coordinator Roy Wittke, the Sun Devils have all the pieces to continue to showcase one of the premier offenses in the nation.

"In adding coach Wittke to our staff, we have gained a fresh set of eyes to the quarterback position," Koetter said. "Also, being our offensive coordinator, he essentially brings a fresh set of eyes to our entire offense."

In 2005, 23 Division I-A teams did not amass 2,000 passing yards for the entire season, and only six teams in the nation had two passers to each throw for over 1,000 yards. Koetter's ability to develop and mentor quarterbacks was taken to a new level in 2005, as Sam Keller and Rudy Carpenter were the only teammates in the nation to each pass for over 2,000 yards. Following the unprecedented performances by the two Sun Devil passers, no team in the nation boasts the proven quarterback depth that ASU does entering the 2006 season, as the combined efforts of the two enabled ASU to finish the season ranked third in the nation in passing yardage, averaging 373.4 yards per game.

Keller began the season performing at a fever pitch, consistently staying among the nation's early-season leaders in passing yards and touchdowns. A midseason injury sidelined Keller for the remainder of the year, however Carpenter immediately picked up where Keller left off, en route to submitting the finest performance by a freshman quarterback in ASU history. The performances of both passers have enabled each player to earn notoriety for his competitiveness and toughness, and each has also proven to be a reliable leader for the Sun Devils. Led by the expertise of Koetter and first-year offensive coordinator Wittke, Keller enters spring drills atop the position's depth chart, having fully recovered from season-ending surgery. However, Carpenter will also compete for playing time among ASU's unparalleled quarterback depth.

"Despite having two excellent quarterbacks, I will not allow a player to lose his spot on the depth chart because of injury," Koetter said. "Sam Keller was playing great as a starter, especially against top caliber teams. When Rudy Carpenter came in, he also played incredibly, which enabled him to lead the nation in passing efficiency."

Amid early-season debates concerning his ability to replace departed legendary starter Andrew Walter, ASU's career passing leader, Sam Keller burst out of his predecessor's shadow to quickly become one of the most dynamic quarterbacks in the nation. Although his 2005 season was cut short five games early due to injury, Keller was able to enjoy one of the finest seasons by a Sun Devil signal-caller in school history. For the season, Keller threw for a team-high 20 touchdowns, in addition to 2,165 passing yards while completing 58.7 percent of his passes. Despite the missed time, Keller's 20 touchdown passes are the second-most by a returning Pac-10 quarterback, ranked within the top 30 nationally for the 2005 season and also stands as the sixth highest single-season total in school history. Additionally, Keller became one of 13 Sun Devils to surpass 2,000 passing yards in a season, and three of those 13 (along with Carpenter and Andrew Walter) have occurred during Koetter's tenure.

From the season's first game, Keller was established among the nation's most talented passers, as he threw four touchdown passes in each of the year's first four games. Keller also piled up the passing yardage, as he turned in two games of 400 yards or more and two games throwing for more than 300 yards. Although he is widely acclaimed for his powerful throwing ability, the charismatic Keller enters his senior season with the second-highest career completion percentage in ASU history (.582), and also owns the ASU record for lowest career interception percentage (301-400 attempts), as he has thrown only 11 career interceptions among 378 passes, a .0291 rating.

Also, last season Keller's 56 passing attempts against No. 5 LSU marked the most single-game passing attempts without an interception in Sun Devil history. In that game, Keller also posted a career-high 461 passing yards, the 12th-highest single game total in the nation last season. Entering the spring physically healthy and strong, and having added 10 pounds of mass to his frame, the 6-4, 240-pound Danville, Calif., native has routinely exhibited innate tenacity, competitive fire and a contagious, fist-pumping sense of enthusiasm, all of which are vital traits of a successful field general.

Despite not starting until the eighth game of the season, Rudy Carpenter turned in the greatest single-season performance by an ASU freshman quarterback in team history. Carpenter finished his unprecedented year ranked first in the nation with a school record 175.01 passer efficiency rating and also ranked third nationally, completing 68.4 percent of his passes. He also threw for a team-high and freshman record 2,273 yards to go along with 17 touchdown passes. The 6-2, 204-pounder became quickly renowned as one of the most accurate passers in college football, and in addition to his highly-ranked passer rating and completion percentage, Carpenter achieved a nation-leading and team record-low interception percentage (.008), after throwing merely two interceptions out of 228 total passing attempts.

"After a couple of heartbreaking losses and with the injury to Sam Keller, our team's confidence took a major shot," Koetter said. "As Rudy Carpenter came in, we regained our confidence as the season went on, and ended up 4-1 with him as our starting quarterback."

Carpenter capped-off his phenomenal rookie campaign by earning Offensive Player of the Game honors for his integral role in ASU's comeback victory against Rutgers in the 2005 Insight Bowl. In that game, Carpenter accounted for ASU individual bowl game records of 23 completed passes, 467 passing yards and four touchdown passes. His total passing yardage against the Scarlet Knights tied for the ninth-highest single game total in the nation in 2005, and that amount is the highest ever by an ASU freshman and the eighth-best single game passing total in Sun Devil history. Additionally, that total was the highest of any quarterback throughout last year's postseason bowl games, and is the greatest amount in Insight Bowl history. Carpenter also owns five of the six top single-game passing performances by an ASU freshman, including a 401-yard effort in his first career start against Washington, and he also threw for over 300 yards against Stanford and No. 14 UCLA. The Westlake, Calif., native plays with relentless grit and toughness, and draws comparisons to former ASU star and current Denver Bronco Jake Plummer.

"Both Sam Keller and Rudy Carpenter saw extensive reps in the spring," Koetter said. "However, I do not foresee us utilizing a two-quarterback system down the road, but I will never close the door to anything."

Brett Boon, a 6-1, 174-pound walk-on from Essexville, Mich., will serve as the team's third quarterback after spending the 2005 season as a redshirt member of ASU's scout team.

Twenty-two-year-old Nate Mortensen returns to ASU after serving a two-year Mormon mission. The 6-1, 205-pound redshirt freshman is a 2002 Tempe High School graduate and rejoined the team for spring drills. His father, Fred Mortensen, is a former ASU quarterback, and is most remembered for his performances as a member of legendary head coach Frank Kush's undefeated 1975 Fiesta Bowl Champion Sun Devil squad.

Danny Sullivan of Los Gatos (Calif.) High School will join the team in the fall as ASU's only quarterback signee of the team's 2006 recruiting class. As a senior, Sullivan completed 134 of 220 passes for 2,435 yards and 24 touchdowns, while leading Los Gatos to the Central Coast Section Medium School title.

Running Back

Keegan Herring	5-10	190	So.	Peoria, Ariz. (Peoria)
Shaun DeWitty	6-2	216	So..	Colorado Springs, Colo. (Doherty)
Preston Jones	5-8	181	Jr.	East Lansing, Mich. (East Lansing)
*Rudy Burgess	5-10	181	Jr.	Edwards, Calif. (Desert)

*also playing wide receiver and cornerback in 2006

Newcomers

Rodney Glass	5-10	175	Fr.	Sherman Oaks, Calif. (Notre Dame HS)
Dimitri Nance	5-10	205	Fr.	Eules, Texas (Trinity HS)
Ryan Torain	6-0	215	Jr.	Shawnee Mission, Kan. (Butler CC)

The Sun Devil running attack gained new life in 2005, as the team averaged 145.7 rushing yards per game, the highest average by an ASU team since Koetter's debut season in 2001. Led by two of the top five returning rushers in the Pac-10 Conference in the record-setting Keegan Herring and multi-talented Rudy Burgess, the added balance to the ASU offense allowed the 2005 Sun Devils to become one of only eight Division 1-A teams to gain over 3,500 yards through the air and more than 1,500 on the ground. With four capable returning lettermen, two highly-touted incoming freshmen and ASU's first junior college transfer at tailback under Koetter, the Sun Devils boast the depth necessary to further complement their dangerous passing game with a consistent rushing attack.

"As a unit, the running back position might have the biggest upside on the entire team," Koetter said. "I expect that Shaun DeWitty and Preston Jones will really push Keegan Herring for playing time this spring."

Added to ASU's coaching staff to mentor the tailbacks is local high school coaching legend John Wrenn, formerly of recent two-time Arizona 5A state champion Chandler Hamilton High School.

"I'm very excited about the addition of coach Wrenn," Koetter said. "With the returning running backs and the arrival of some bigger backs, there are plenty of reasons to be optimistic about our running game."

Herring, now a sophomore, burst onto the scene as a true freshman in 2005, rushing for a school rookie record 870 yards, which also placed him 10th in the nation among true freshmen rushers. Although he shared the backfield with Burgess, the 5-10, 190-pound Peoria native tied for the team lead with six touchdowns on the ground and paced the squad averaging 5.5 yards per carry. His impact came immediately as a Sun Devil, as Herring ran for 134 yards in his first collegiate game in the season opener against Temple. That total broke the school record for rushing yards in an ASU debut established by Sun Devil great Woody Green in 1971. Not to be a "one hit wonder", two games later Herring tallied a Sun Devil season-high 197 rushing yards versus Northwestern, the third-highest single game total by a freshman in ASU history, and the 22nd highest single-game rushing total by any Sun Devil. Additionally, Herring's 158 carries enabled him to amass the highest amount of carries and rushing yards by a Sun Devil tailback since Delvon Flowers in 2001, Koetter's first year in Tempe and the last time ASU boasted a 1,000-yard rusher. Koetter expects that the lightning-quick Herring will only improve in 2006, as he is the fourth-leading returning rusher in the Pac-10 Conference and could receive the bulk of the carries for the Sun Devils.

After seeing action in five games as a true freshman in 2005, Koetter has high expectations for Shaun DeWitty's potential to be a key contributor to ASU's running attack in 2006. A 6-2, 216-pound sophomore from Colorado Springs, Colo., DeWitty is the biggest tailback on the ASU roster, and can provide a much-needed presence of powerful running in addition to above-average speed to complement the agility and athleticism of his fellow tailbacks. DeWitty will likely stand to benefit from Koetter's decision to use Burgess in a myriad of ways, and saw increased reps at tailback during spring drills.

Speedy walk-on Preston Jones has taken full advantage of opportunities he has earned in his first two seasons as a Sun Devil, and again looks to compete for carries as a junior in 2006. Jones finished as the team's third-leading rusher behind Herring and Burgess, carrying the ball 39 times for 187 yards and two touchdowns in seven games last season. Jones' production improved significantly in 2005 from the previous season, as the 5-8, 181-pounder upped his yards per carry average from 3.4 in 2004 to 4.8 in 2005. Jones has two-year career totals of 351 yards on 85 carries.

Versatile junior Rudy Burgess might continue to see action as a tailback, however in the spring he added to his already diverse athletic portfolio by seeing reps defensively at the cornerback position, as well as at wide receiver. Burgess split tailback duties with Herring in 2005, running for a total of 644 yards and six touchdowns. In less than two full seasons at the position, Burgess has carried for over 1,000 career yards and was the only Division 1-A player last season to gain over 600 yards rushing and 600 yards receiving. He is perhaps the most well rounded offensive machine in the conference, and the only returning Pac-10 player to rank within the top five in both rushing and receiving. Burgess is a threat from any position on the field, and Koetter intends to maximize his athletic potential more than ever in 2006.

Tempe McClintock High School product Randy Hill will no longer be an active member of the team in 2006, as injuries have ended his playing career a year early. Hill ran for 393 yards in 19 career games as a Sun Devil, with a majority of his production coming in 11 games as a redshirt freshman in 2003. He will serve as a student assistant for the ASU coaching staff for the 2006, to learn the craft for future pursuits.

The 2006 Sun Devil recruiting class features three elite and accomplished athletes, the potential for whom Koetter has great expectations

True freshmen Rodney Glass of Sherman Oaks, Calif. and Dimitri Nance of Euless, Texas, will both join the team in the fall and are two of the marquee athletes of ASU's 2006 class.

The 5-10, 175-pound Glass was rated as the No. 21 running back in the nation by Rivals.com out of Notre Dame High School, and as a track and field star he was reportedly the second-fastest high school athlete in the state of California and boasted the fourth-fastest returning time in the country as a high school senior.

As a senior at Trinity High School, Nance joined current Chicago Bear Cedric Benson as the only players in the illustrious history of 5A football in the state of Texas to rush for over 3,000 yards in a single season. The 5-10, 205-pounder was rated as the No. 13 all-purpose back in the country by Rivals.com and was the 2005 Texas 5A State Player of the Year, posting gaudy season totals of 341 carries for 3,173 yards and 41 touchdowns.

Junior college transfer Ryan Torain of Butler (Kan.) CC will also join the team in the fall and is expected to immediately compete for playing time. A 6-0, 215-pound junior, Torain provides a running style complementary to that of Burgess and Herring. He was ranked as the No. 52 junior college player in the nation by SuperPrep, and ran for over 800 yards in at 12 touchdowns in split duty as a sophomore at Butler.

Under Koetter's guidance, ASU has produced some of the most recognized and accomplished wide receivers in team history. Koetter has coached a 1,000-yard receiver in each of his five seasons in Tempe, a remarkable figure considering that only four other times in ASU history has a receiver surpassed 1,000 yards in a single season. However, the 2006 season marks the most significant shift in experience at the position during Koetter's tenure, but guided by Koetter and sixth-year assistant coach Darryl Jackson, the unit remains loaded with capable athletes prepared to "answer the scratch".

"The competition at wide receiver should be an exciting one," Koetter said. "We have four young guys on scholarship (Mike Jones, Nate Kimbrough, Chris McGaha and Brandon Smith). Jamaal Lewis will be in the mix at split end, and Rudy Burgess will circle back into the mix at wide receiver as well."

Not only does ASU have to replace All-American Derek Hagan, the all-time leading receiver in Pac-10 Conference and Sun Devil history, the team loses its best deep-threat in Matt Miller and a reliable third-down option in Moey Mutz. Four seniors in total graduate from the 2005 squad, however Koetter expects that the team's returning veterans, along with the use of a former tight end and four promising underclassmen will provide a variety of receiving threats for the Sun Devils.

"We know we have great quarterbacks and tight ends," Koetter said. "The big question in the passing game is- how are we going to replace those three senior wide receivers?"

Already one of the most dangerous special teams threats in the nation, senior All-American Terry Richardson will possibly assume an even larger role in the passing game, as ASU looks to replenish its wide receiver depth. "T-Rich" started seven of 11 games at the flanker position last season and returns as ASU's second-leading receiver, having hauled in 37 passes for 495 yards and five touchdowns a year ago. He is also ASU's leading active career receiver, having accumulated 98 catches for 1,410 yards and 11 touchdowns in his three seasons as a Sun Devil. The 6-1, 187-pound veteran is a scoring threat at any time, whether running short to deep routes, carrying the ball on end-around plays or as a game-breaking return specialist. Although he was unable to participate during spring drills due to an unspecified team rules violation, Richardson is the most experienced at the receiver position, and will be expected to continue to be a dangerous yet reliable target for Sun Devil passers.

As he moves positions from tight end to wide receiver for the 2006 season, senior Jamaal Lewis provides a threatening physical presence to the position. At 6-4, 230 pounds, Lewis poses the threat of a constant mismatch for opposing defenders, and his 19.6 yard-per-catch average is the sixth-highest returning average in the nation, a statistic that ranked first nationally among tight ends last season. Lewis provides an athletic and sure-handed big play threat with an acute tendency to find the end zone. Throughout his career, Lewis averages roughly one scoring reception for every four times he catches the ball, having caught nine touchdown passes among his 39 total receptions. Despite missing three games due to injury, Lewis enjoyed his finest season in 2005, catching 23 passes for 446 yards and five touchdowns. Lewis possesses elite physical toughness, speed and leaping ability, all of which combine to compose a blueprint for a dangerous target for Sun Devil quarterbacks, especially when inside the red zone. His transition to wide receiver is expected to be a smooth one, as he has seen significant time split out as well as in the slot, and his 16.3 career yard per catch average indicates his ability to stretch the field from whichever receiving position he is assigned.

If only in part-time use, junior Rudy Burgess will continue to see action as a receiving threat in 2006. In addition to time spent at tailback and wide receiver, Burgess will see defensive action as a cornerback. Although he intends to become a rare two-way threat for the Sun Devils, Burgess enters the season as ASU's leading returning receiver, having caught 59 passes for 655 yards and four touchdowns last season. He has also been one of the most consistent Sun Devil receivers, having caught at least one pass in 14 consecutive games, the longest active streak on the team. After switching to tailback midway through the 2004 season, Burgess has become ASU's most versatile offensive weapon whether carrying or receiving the ball, and his 10 total touchdowns in 2005 paced the Sun Devil squad. Koetter plans to utilize Burgess' unique athleticism in a myriad of ways while on the offensive side of the ball, one of which will continue to be as a receiving target, whether out of the backfield or split out in traditional formation.

Sophomore flanker Mike Jones progressed significantly over the latter part of the 2005 season, and saw an increase in playing time because of his steady improvement. Jones played in 11 games as a redshirt freshman, catching four passes for 22 yards. Standing 6-3 tall, he is one of the ASU's tallest wide receivers, with explosive playmaking ability to complement his advantageous frame. A two-sport athlete, Jones also saw action during the spring as an outfielder for Head Coach Pat Murphy's nationally-ranked Sun Devil baseball team. Koetter remains highly optimistic about Jones' potential for 2006, as his physical stature and work ethic combine to give him the necessary tools to thrive in ASU's offense. Jones can play any of the three wide receiver positions on the field, and Koetter praised Jones for being the most consistent performer on the squad during spring drills.

Sophomore Nate Kimbrough is in position to be a top contributor at wide receiver, after catching seven passes for 76 yards and one touchdown in five games last season as a redshirt freshman. Kimbrough fits the lean, athletic mold of recent Sun Devil wide receivers and will compete to solidify his position among the top of ASU's versatile depth of talent at the position.

Redshirt freshmen Chris McGaha and Brandon Smith will have the opportunity to play early and often, as each player made remarkable progress while spending 2005 as redshirt members of ASU's scout team. McGaha, a Phoenix Moon Valley High product and 2004 Arizona State Player of the Year, has impressed coaches with his fluid athleticism and natural technique as a wide receiver and as a returns specialist. Smith has been clocked as one of the fastest Sun Devils, and has been commended for his physical and mental toughness. Both have been described as being passionate and energetic athletes, and will be expected to transfer their respective progress from the practice field and weight room onto the field of play.

"Brandon Smith has the ability be a key player in our offense in 2006," Koetter said. "We're very excited to see if he can take that incredible speed of his and be the home run threat that we've been missing since (current St. Louis Ram) Shaun McDonald left. Both Smith and Chris McGaha had excellent off-seasons and we're very excited about their potential in our offense."

Walk-ons Alex King, a senior, and junior Jeff Gray are veterans of the system who will add depth and compete for playing time, as will junior Tyrice Thompson who moves back to the offensive side of the ball after competing as a reserve defensive end. As is commonplace among Sun Devil wide receivers, all three have seen significant time as members of ASU's special teams units, and look to do so again in 2006.

True freshman Kyle Williams of Chaparral High School in Scottsdale, Ariz. will join the team in the fall. Williams is the fifth consecutive Arizona State Player of the Year to have signed with the Sun Devils and is regarded as an explosive and electrifying athlete, with tremendous upside as a receiver and as a return specialist. As a senior, Williams returned 15 punts for 316 yards and three touchdowns, rushed for 1,160 yards on 108 carries with 21 total touchdowns, caught 30 passes for 625 yards and six touchdowns and altogether had 2,294 all-purpose yards and 30 touchdowns in 2005.

As ASU enters the team's third season utilizing both an H-back and tight end, the dynamic depth at these positions that the Sun Devils have developed has created a variety of options for Koetter's offensive play-calling. Whether in the traditional line of scrimmage position or in a fullback's placement in the backfield, the variety of alignments that Koetter and assistant head coach Tom Osborn utilize has given ASU's offense as a whole greater breadth and diversity. The prominence of Sun Devil tight ends is evidenced by the fact that ASU had the fourth highest pass-catching unit of tight ends in the nation last season, collectively hauling in 72 passes for 1,063 yards and 12 touchdowns. Although ASU graduates one of its most commanding team leaders from 2005 and has relocated one of its most productive pass-catching tight ends, Koetter expects the unit as a whole to continue to be a major focal point of the ASU offense.

The headliner of the group is junior Zach Miller, a 2006 Playboy Magazine Preseason All-American, and one of the all-time ASU greats at the position. After only two seasons wearing maroon and gold, Miller enters his junior season tied atop the ASU career touchdown receptions by a tight end list (11), ranks second in receptions by a tight end (94) and fourth in all-time receiving yards by a tight end (1,028). Miller followed his All-American rookie year of 2004 with an impressive encore in 2005, and has caught more passes during his first two seasons than any other tight end in the nation during that time span. Also, his receiving yardage and touchdown totals are both the second-most in the nation at his position during that same duration. Miller has become the most reliable receiving threat for the Sun Devils, and is second among ASU's active career receiving leaders behind wide receiver Terry Richardson in receptions, receiving yards and touchdowns. Also, Miller has caught a pass in 20 of 22 career games, and has been known to have a knack for making difficult catches among heavy defense. Nicknamed "The Truth" for having lived up to the hype that surrounded him early in his college career, the 6-5, 258-pound Phoenix native combines strength and athleticism into an overall versatility that is certainly en vogue, but still rare at the tight end position.

"In my opinion, Zach Miller is one of the best blocking tight ends in the nation," Koetter said. "He gets a ton of credit for his acrobatic catches, but when you watch cut-ups you see what a tremendous blocker he is."

The lone graduate from 2005 may not be a statistically substantial one, but former co-captain Lee Burghgraef started 37 games as a Sun Devil, including all 12 at the H-back position in 2005, and was well-known for his work ethic and toughness on the field.

First in line to fill Burghgraef's void is 6-5, 236-pound junior Brent Miller, the older brother of Zach Miller who caught seven passes for 111 yards and two touchdowns in 2005. He has made progressive strides throughout his career and is in line to earn a significant increase in playing time. Still relatively new to the tight end/H-back position, Miller is considered to have incredible potential as both a blocking threat and a receiving option.

A noteworthy addition to the unit has been sophomore H-back Dane Guthrie, a former transfer from the University of Florida who sat out the 2005 season due to NCAA transfer rules. At 6-3, 274 pounds, Guthrie was the ranked by Rivals as the No. 15 tight end in the nation coming out of Killian (Miami, Fla.) High School in 2004, the same recruiting class in which teammates Zach Miller (No. 1) and Andrew Pettes (No. 12) were also highly-ranked on a national level. Guthrie is an exceptional athlete for a player his size, however his experience has been limited to scout team duties at both Florida and ASU.

Sophomore tight end Andrew Pettes, a Phoenix Moon Valley product, and redshirt freshman H-back Jovon Williams have both made steady improvements and will vie for playing time. Pettes saw action in six games as a redshirt freshman in 2005, while Williams spent the season as a redshirt member of ASU's scout team.

Walk-on junior Brady Conrad of Gilbert (Ariz.) High School adds depth to the unit.

True freshman Lance Evbuomwan from East Valley High School in Redlands, Calif., is a tremendous athlete who Rivals.com regarded as the No. 26 tight end in the nation for 2006, will add depth when he joins the team in the fall. A former star prep basketball player, the 6-4, 235-pound Evbuomwan is described as having an amazing upside, as he will only be 17 years old throughout the majority of his true freshman season. As a senior, he had 54 receptions for 739 yards and 13 touchdowns.

In 2005, no position on the ASU roster collectively became more depleted by injuries than the offensive line. However, veteran leaders and qualified reserves emerged to lead the path that enabled ASU to rank second in the nation in total offense, and also rush for 145.7 yards per game, the highest average by a Sun Devil team since 2001. In total, nine Sun Devils started along the offensive line last season, seven of which return for 2006. Led by the guidance of assistant coach Brent Myers, ASU returns one of the most experienced units of linemen in the Pac-10, as the five incumbent starters have combined for 86 career starts.

"One thing that surprised me about last season was the amount of injuries on the offensive line," Koetter said. "The resiliency of that group under coach Myers was incredible."

Also, the Sun Devils boast a physically imposing group, as the unit combines to weigh nearly two-and-a-half tons, averaging 318 pounds per player among the 15 on the roster, and only two linemen weigh less than 300 pounds.

Senior right tackle Andrew Carnahan, a three-year starter, spearheads a veteran offensive line, having started more career games than any player on the ASU roster. The 6-8, 300-pounder has started all 33 games in which he's played throughout his first three seasons in Tempe, including each of the first 29 games of his career. Trademarked by his toughness and the ability to battle through pain, Carnahan earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors playing nine games as a junior in 2005.

Having started 22 of 27 games at ASU, senior Stephen Berg returns to man the starting left guard position for the third consecutive year. A 6-5, 309-pound Tucson Canyon del Oro High School product, Berg started 11 games as a junior in 2005, and has steadily shown satisfactory improvement in each of his first three seasons in Tempe. Despite having off-season shoulder surgery, Berg will be ready for summer conditioning.

Junior Brandon Rodd returns as a second-year starter at left tackle, where he was the only Sun Devil offensive lineman to start all 12 games in 2005. For his career, the Aiea, Hawai'i native has started all 13 games in which he has played, a total that includes his lone start in the season opener of 2004, a game in which he suffered a season-ending knee injury. Rodd has played both positions along the left side of the offensive line, and as a sophomore in 2005, Rodd joined Carnahan as recipients of honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors.

Junior Mike Pollak enters his first season as the full-time starter at center, having spent the past two seasons backing-up and filling in for former All-Pac-10 performers Drew Hodgdon and Grayling Love. Pollak is one of the most powerful of all Sun Devils, and added 15 pounds of mass during the off-season, upping his playing weight to an even 300 pounds. The Tempe Corona del Sol High School product has been a reliable reserve and sufficient spot-starter during his career, having started 10 of 20 career contests. After playing behind his all-conference predecessors, Pollak will assume a major leadership role as ASU's starting center in 2006.

Measuring 6-7, and 339 pounds, senior right guard Zach Krula enters the 2006 having added 29 pounds to his frame in preparation of his second season scheduled to be the Sun Devil's full-time starter at the position. Krula started the first three games of 2005 before suffering a season-ending ankle injury against Northwestern on Sept. 17, and did not see action in spring drills as he continues his rehabilitation in preparation of the start of the 2006 regular season. He has played in 16 games throughout his first three seasons at ASU, starting eight contests, which came at the end of the 2004 season and beginning of the 2005 season.

Robert Gustavis enters his junior season to compete for playing time with Krula, and saw action with the first team during spring drills. Gustavis filled as a starter for Krula in two games in 2005, and has played in 12 total contests during his freshman and sophomore years. He has followed the trend set by his fellow linemen, having gained 20 pounds of mass during the off-season, increasing his game weight to 312 pounds. He also provides another versatile presence for the Sun Devils, as "Goose" can also fill in at center or left guard when needed.

Gargantuan left guard Leo Talavou looks to compete with Berg, after starting three of eight games at the position as a redshirt freshman in 2005. Standing 6-4, and weighing a massive 371 pounds, the Fountain Valley, Calif., native is the largest athlete on the ASU roster, and is reportedly the second-largest college football player in the nation. Talavou also has the ability to play either guard position.

Julius Orieuwku, a 6-7, 311-pound junior right tackle, will serve as Carnahan's top reserve at the position, where he has played six career games. Koetter praises Orieuwku for being one of the team's most improved players during spring drills.

ASU's 2006 offensive line will include a group of four redshirt freshmen, for each of whom Koetter has high expectations.

"We have four redshirt offensive linemen that are all foaming at the mouth to break in," Koetter said. "However, we still have a veteran group, but each of the four will be ready to compete when his time comes."

Thomas Altieri will compete at the center position, after spending the 2005 season as a redshirt member of ASU's scout team. The 6-2, 294-pounder was one of the marquee recruits of ASU's 2005 class, and during his senior season at Vista (Calif.) High School he was rated as the eighth-best center in the nation by Rivals.com

Shawn Lauvao, 6-3, 314 pounds, was perhaps the most impressive player on ASU's scout team in 2005, and was nearly promoted to the varsity squad as a true freshman. Lauvao was presented the McBurney Scout Team Award at the team's year-end banquet last November, which is given annually to ASU's most outstanding offensive scout team player. The Honolulu, Hawaii native was regarded as the No. 35 offensive guard in the nation by Rivals.com as a high school senior, and enters his redshirt freshman listed third at left guard behind Berg and Talavou.

Local product Richard Tuitu'u of Highland High School in Gilbert is the second-largest Sun Devil, and provides another massive presence on the Sun Devil line. The 6-5, 362-pound redshirt freshman enters the 2006 season behind Carnahan and Orieuwku at right tackle, and during his senior season at Highland, Tuitu'u was ranked as the nation's 22nd-best offensive tackle by Rivals.com. According to Koetter, Tuitu'u had a tremendously productive off-season, and expectations remain high for him.

Walk-on junior Beau Bandura and sophomore Paul Fanaika will add depth to the Sun Devil offensive line. Fanaika, who was recently was honored with the Levi Jones scholarship, earned substantial playing time as a redshirt freshman in 2005, seeing action in 11 contests, and is listed behind Krula and Gustavis at right guard. Due to Krula's spring rehabilitation, Fanaika will serve as the top reserve at his position throughout spring drills. Due to his performance in 2005, Koetter has awarded Fanaika the Levi Jones scholarship, which takes effect in the fall of 2006. Bandura has played in two career games as a reserve offensive lineman for the Sun Devils.

Markous Duffe, a 6-5, 340-pound transfer from Ventura (Calif.) CC joined the team for spring drills, and will compete for time at left tackle.

True freshman Saia Falahola was an All-Texas Class 5A first-team member following his senior season, a year in which he blocked for record-setting tailback and fellow Sun Devil signee, Dimitri Nance, en route to a Class 5A Texas state championship. A 6-2, 310-pound product of Trinity High School in Euless, Texas, Falahola has the ability to play either guard or center, and will join the Sun Devil squad as in the fall.

DEFENSE

The 2006 Sun Devil defense features a variety of experienced athletes, and has the size and athletic ability to improve upon its collective performance from a year ago. The defense features a total of nine seniors throughout the unit, and ASU also welcomes into the active fold three talented former Division 1-A transfers along the defensive line, each of whom was forced to sit out the 2005 season. Led by the coaching of second-year defensive coordinator Bill Miller, and the play of defensive tackle Jordan Hill and strong safety Zach Catanese, Koetter is optimistic of the team's defensive potential for the 2006 season.

"The best way to improve our defense is to re-establish ourselves as being fundamentally sound," Koetter said. "We were not satisfied with how our defense ranked last season, and we are doing what is necessary to get the best players on the field to help improve our defense as we look ahead to 2006."

When all the pieces come together, the 2006 Sun Devil defensive line has the potential to become one of the strengths of the team's defense. Although ASU loses starters Quency Darley and sack leader DeWayne Hollyfield from 2005, the unit possesses an abundance of capable athletes, many of whom boast elite size, a helpful stepping stone in strengthening ASU's defense. Under the direction of first-year defensive line coach Grady Stretz, ASU will look to its deep defensive line, led by five seniors, to greatly impact the team's overall defensive improvements.

Jordan Hill, a senior team captain who originally arrived at ASU as a linebacker, has added nearly 20 pounds during the off-season, bulking up to a playing weight of 298 pounds to help improve his ability to be a punishing interior lineman. After earning honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors last season with totals of 31 tackles, six tackles for loss and one sack, Koetter expects Hill to continue to improve as a leader for the ASU defense in 2006. Described as a "perennial overachiever", Hill, a husband and father, who turns 25 during the season, serves as a consummate leader and role model for his younger teammates both on and off the field.

Senior Kyle Caldwell is again positioned to contribute at one defensive end position, where if healthy, he can be one of the more feared edge rushers in the Pac-10. Caldwell has shed 10 pounds, down to 261 pounds for the 2006 season, which allows him to maintain the mass to overpower opponents, while also featuring the speed to be an elite edge pass-rusher. The Scottsdale Saguaro High School product had 17 total tackles (three tackles for loss) as a junior in 2005, but had his healthiest and finest season as a sophomore in 2004, posting career highs with 28 tackles, seven tackles for loss and tied for the team lead with Hill totaling seven sacks. Caldwell was unable to compete during spring drills, in attempts to be fully prepared for the season's start in the fall. Koetter remains optimistic about Caldwell's ability to end his ASU career with a strong senior season, as the former Arizona State High School Player of the Year has been able to overcome a multitude of injuries throughout his Sun Devil days to get his career back on a promising track.

"Defensive end is a position that can potentially become a strength for us," Koetter said. "Loren Howard and Tranell Morant have the potential to be difference makers, and Will Kofe, Kellen Mills and Dexter Davis are all very solid players."

Likely to compete for starting positions along the defensive line are Howard, Michael Marquardt and Morant, each of whom transferred to ASU from other Division 1-A universities and spent the 2005 season on ASU's scout team.

Howard, a senior and former Northwestern University transfer, was unavailable for spring drills due to injury, as he prepares to compete for playing time in the fall. A high school teammate of Caldwell at Saguaro, the 6-4, 280-pound Howard has the ability to be one of the most dominant defensive linemen in the nation, and played at such a level during his career in the Big Ten. As a three-year starter for the Wildcats, Howard surpassed totals of 150 tackles, 30 tackles for loss and 10 sacks. He finished his three-year Northwestern career fifth in the school's history in both sacks (11) and tackles for loss (34). Howard earned honorable mention All-Big Ten honors as a sophomore in 2003, after recording 65 tackles and career-highs of 16 tackles for loss and eight sacks. As a true freshman in 2002, he earned first team freshman All-American honors and was named the Big Ten Conference Defensive Freshman of the Year, after tallying a career-best 81 total tackles, 13.5 of which were behind the line of scrimmage.

After transferring from Brigham Young University prior to the start of the 2005 season, junior Michael Marquardt had a remarkable year on ASU's scout team last year. Marquardt was presented with the Glen Hawkins Award for his outstanding play as a member of ASU's defensive scout team at the year-end banquet last November. In addition to his performance on the field, Marquardt has gained nearly 30 pounds of mass since arriving in Tempe last fall, and at 6-4, 288 pounds, the Vista, Calif., native is among the top starting candidates beside Hill at defensive tackle. As a Cougar, Marquardt was credited for 16 tackles, five tackles for loss and three sacks during his 21-game career playing in Provo, Utah.

One of two players to have transferred to ASU from the University of Florida, junior Tranell Morant is expected to compete at defensive end. As a freshman in 2004, Morant had 12 total tackles as a reserve defensive end and special teams contributor for the Gators. A Miami, Fla., native, Morant was regarded as the 23rd-best defensive end in the country by Rivals.com coming out of Braddock High School in 2003. Although he was unable to perform during half of spring drills due to injury, Morant is physically gifted at 6-5, and 280 pounds and provides an imposing presence along the Sun Devil defensive line.

Senior Will Kofe became a solid defensive line presence throughout his first year at ASU in 2005, and will be a top defensive line contributor for the Sun Devils. The former junior college transfer played all 12 games as a junior, totaling 23 tackles, three of which were for loss. Kofe has the motor and the ability to break the starting line-up as well, as he started a total of seven contests as a junior, including the first four games of the year. Also, due to spring injuries among others along the defensive line, Kofe saw substantial time with the first team defense in the spring, until he was injured midway through the session. As is in abundance among Sun Devil defensive linemen, Kofe's size exceeds the norm for a collegian at the position, as the 6-2, 290-pounder has the versatility to either play defensive end or tackle, and will likely do both for the Sun Devils during the 2006 season.

Local product David Smith enjoyed a successful 2005 season as a redshirt freshman, playing in 11 games with five total stops (two tackles for loss) as well as two fumble recoveries. The 6-3, 268-pound sophomore and Chandler Hamilton High School product has continued to improve, as Koetter regards Smith as one of the players to have improved the most during spring drills, and is scheduled to be among ASU's top defensive tackles.

Former walk-on Kellen Mills is a capable reserve that maximized his playing opportunities to their fullest extent in 2005, and is among the top defensive end reserve candidates for his junior season. Mills earned a scholarship from Koetter in the spring of 2005, and has played in every game of his freshman and sophomore years. Last season, he had 10 total tackles and one forced fumble during time played as a reserve end and top special teams contributor. Due to spring injuries among his fellow defensive ends, Mills saw substantial reps during the spring, and impressed Koetter and his staff during his increased playing time with his relentless, non-stop style of play.

At 6-2, 314 pounds, mammoth senior Shannon Jones is the largest returning Sun Devil defensive lineman, and will vie for playing time as a run-stuffing defensive tackle. A former junior college transfer and younger brother of former ASU standout Shane Jones, he had two tackles in nine games as a junior in 2005.

Sophomore Wes Evans will likely see action as a defensive end, as well as a SAM linebacker in the team's "dime" defensive alignment.

Redshirt freshman Dexter Davis and junior Brett Palmer expect to compete for time at defensive end and tackle, respectively. Davis, a 6-2, 250-pound former all-state honoree while playing for Phoenix Thunderbird High School, plans to be in the mix for playing time at defensive end with transfers Howard and Morant. Palmer, another hometown product out of Tempe Marcos de Niza, has played in nine games during his two-year ASU career and at 6-2, 295 pounds, he adds yet another massive presence for the Sun Devil interior defensive line.

"One redshirt freshman to keep an eye on is Dexter Davis," Koetter said. "It will be very interesting to see him once he gets his chance to play."

Walk-ons Tashaka Merriweather (junior), Michael Thompson (junior) and redshirt freshman Leo Montt, will add depth to ASU's defensive line.

ASU's 2006 recruiting class includes four defensive linemen, including two junior college transfers and two elite high school signees.

Joining the team in the fall is junior Alex Fa'agai, a last-minute addition to the Sun Devil signing class. A 6-3, 286-pound defensive end, Fa'agai was rated the 85th-best junior college player in the nation by Rivals.com. As a sophomore at Foothill Junior College in San Jose, Calif., Fa'agai recorded 50 tackles and 12 sacks in only six games before his season was cut short due to injury.

True freshman Jon Hargis of Mesa Red Mountain High School will begin his Sun Devil career in the fall, after being ranked as the 49th-best defensive tackle in the country by Scout.com. The 6-3, 285-pounder was a Class 5A All-State first-team member as a senior in 2005. Hargis also won the Curley Culp Award as a senior, which is named after the former Sun Devil and is presented annually to the top high school defensive lineman in the state of Arizona after posting 81 tackles, four quarterback sacks and one fumble recovery as a senior.

ASU will welcome true freshman Zach Niusulu of Barstow (Calif.) High School in the fall. Having verbally committed in April, 2005, Niusulu was the first commitment of ASU's 2006 class. Ranked as No. 61 defensive lineman in the country by Rivals.com, Niusulu is the younger brother of former UCLA lineman C.J. Niusulu.

Joining the squad in the fall is Martin Tevaseu, a rare four-to-play-three sophomore transfer from Santa Rosa (Calif.) Junior College. Tevaseu will be one of the biggest among ASU defensive linemen, measuring 6-3, and 320 pounds. As a freshman in 2005, he collected 40 tackles, five quarterback sacks and three pass breakups en route to all-league postseason honors.

Mike Nixon	6-2	216	Fr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Sunnyslope HS)
Jamarr Robinson	6-3	235	Fr.	Fairfield, Calif. (Fairfield)

Following the departures of 2005 Pac-10 Conference Pat Tillman Co-Defensive Player of the Year Dale Robinson and three-year starter Jamar Williams from last year's linebacker corps, the pendulum swings to a group of young and talented athletes to continue the recent trend of outstanding linebacker play at ASU. The linebacker unit is directed by defensive coordinator Bill Miller, in his second season assuming both duties.

Looking to replace Robinson at the MIKE linebacker position is senior Beau Manutai, in his second year at ASU after transferring from Dixie College in St. George, Utah. Manutai started the final two games of the 2005 season, and on the year he recorded 36 tackles (18 solo), three tackles for loss and one forced fumble. Although he predominately played as a reserve in 2005, Manutai is ASU's third-leading returning tackler, and last season he had the third-most tackles for loss among returning Sun Devil defenders. The 6'1" 262-pound former junior college All-American is the largest of the linebackers, and he is also the second-eldest on the entire ASU roster, as he will turn 25 years old in September. Despite missing a majority of spring drills due to injury, Manutai is expected to be a leader among the Sun Devil linebackers in 2006.

Phoenix Maryvale product Robert James is the lone returning starter from 2005, and is expected to retain his first-string spot at the WILL linebacker position for his junior year. The 5-11, 225-pound James started six of 11 games in 2005, recording 36 total tackles (17 solo), five tackles for loss, one sack and one interception. A one-time safety, James has efficient range, vital for his position, and is ASU's returning leader with five pass deflections last season and is tied with Manutai for the team's third-leading returning tackler from 2005.

After being one of only two true freshmen to see significant action in 2005, sophomore Chad Lindsey finds himself at the top of the SAM linebacker depth chart to replace the departed Jamar Williams. In 10 games last season, Lindsey tallied five tackles and one sack, while playing mainly on special teams. A Houston native, just as his predecessor at the position was, Lindsey has added nearly 25 pounds to his frame, up to 224 pounds, since arriving in Tempe last fall.

"Back in 2003, Jamar Williams made huge strides between his true freshman and sophomore seasons," Koetter said. "We hope that Chad Lindsey can make similar strides at the same point in his career in his attempt to replace Williams as one of our starting linebackers."

Sophomore Adam Vincent will compete for time at the MIKE linebacker position with Manutai after a solid season as a redshirt freshman in 2004, in which he recorded 13 total tackles in 11 games as a reserve behind Dale Robinson. The 6'2", 239-pound local product from Chandler Hamilton High School will initially compete with transplanted tailback Antone Saulsberry as backup MIKE linebackers.

Moving from safety to the WILL linebacker position is 6'4", 220-pound senior Derron Ware. The former Michigan State transfer saw action in the secondary in nine games in 2005, recording eight total tackles and one interception. Ware will compete with James at the WILL linebacker position, and showed promise at his new position during spring drills.

Antone Saulsberry moves back to linebacker for 2006, the position at which he was originally recruited and was ranked by Rivals.com as the 23rd-best outside linebacker in the nation for 2004. Saulsberry volunteered to switch to tailback as a true freshman in 2004, and gained a total of 100 yards and one touchdown, while averaging 3.6 yards per carry during his freshman and sophomore years. However, he maintains the eligibility status of a sophomore, as he was injured for the vast majority of the 2005 season, and was therefore granted an extra year and will look to learn the nuances of his new position and compete for time at the MIKE linebacker position behind Manutai and Vincent.

Sophomore Wes Evans will back up Chad Lindsey at the SAM linebacker position. Evans saw action in three games as a redshirt freshman in 2005, collecting one assisted tackle. Evans will likely be a reserve defensive end as well as a backup SAM linebacker.

Walk-on juniors Andy Howe and Brett Nenaber, as well as sophomore Brian Quackenbush will all add depth among the linebacker corps for the Sun Devils. Nenaber and Quackenbush have both seen game action as defensive reserves and members of ASU's special teams.

Aiding the Sun Devils' retooling process at linebacker is its star-studded 2006 recruiting class, ranked by Rivals.com as the ninth-best group of linebacker signees in the nation. ASU will welcome a group of four talented true freshmen in the fall, including Jeff Bereuter, Travis Goethel, Gerald Munns and Jamarr Robinson. A fifth true freshman, Mike Nixon, joined the team during the spring after spending three seasons playing minor league baseball. Also, Garrett Judah will arrive in the fall, which marks 2006 as the fifth consecutive year that Koetter has signed a junior college linebacker to plug into the defense.

Bereuter will be a fall arrival in Tempe by way of MacArthur High School in Irving, Texas, where he was selected to the 5A All-District first team as a junior and senior. He registered 115 tackles, including 13 tackles for loss, one quarterback sack, four forced fumbles, one fumble recovery and four pass deflections as a senior.

Goethel ranks as one of the most highly acclaimed of ASU's 2006 recruits, regarded as the 10th-best linebacker in the nation by Rivals.com. The Vista (Calif.) High School graduate had 155 tackles, 14 tackles for loss, eight quarterback sacks, five interceptions (two for touchdowns), one forced fumble and one recovery as a senior. Also, he was a former high school teammate of ASU redshirt freshman center Thomas Altieri at Vista.

Transfer Garrett Judah of Butte College in Oroville, Calif. will look to compete for playing time in the fall. The athletic 6-3, 232-pound junior was selected as an honorable mention Junior College All-American after collecting 102 tackles, eight quarterback sacks, one interception, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries as a sophomore in 2005.

Local product Gerald Munns will also join the Sun Devils in the fall, ranked as the 18th best linebacker in the nation by Rivals.com. Munns had a strong senior season and earned 5A All-State honors playing for first-year ASU running backs coach John Wrenn at Chandler Hamilton High School, totaling 146 tackles, seven quarterback sacks, two interceptions, four fumble recoveries and two forced fumbles. Hamilton has produced several ASU defenders in recent years, including current Sun Devils Brian Quackenbush, David Smith and Adam Vincent, as well as former ASU All-American and current Baltimore Raven Terrell Suggs.

Twenty-two-year-old true freshman Mike Nixon joined the team as a walk-on for spring drills after having played in the Los Angeles Dodgers minor league system. The 6-2, 216-pound Nixon was the 2002 Arizona State Player of the Year while playing quarterback, defensive back and kicker for Sunnyslope High School in Phoenix, and defensively he recorded 109 tackles (35 solo) and eight interceptions that year. He ended his prep career as the state's all-time leading passer (8,091 career yards), and signed a national letter of intent to play at UCLA, but chose to pursue a career in professional baseball. Nixon began the spring as a nickel back, but showed greater promise as a linebacker.

Robinson will begin his ASU career in the fall after a remarkable career at Fairfield (Calif.) High School, where he was a three-year starter and was rated as the 25th-best at his position as a senior by Rivals.com.

Cornerback

Keno Walter-White	5-11	185	Sr.	San Diego, Calif. (Mesa College)
Chad Green	5-10	190	Jr.	Van Nuys, Calif. (Birmingham)
Rudy Burgess	5-10	181	Jr.	Edwards, Calif. (Desert)
Grant Crunkleton	5-10	184	RS-Fr.	Denver, Colo. (Mullen)
Littrele Jones	5-9	181	Jr.	San Fernando, Calif. (Taft)
Travis Smith	5-11	173	RS-Fr.	Los Angeles, Calif. (Jefferson)
Ronny Garrison	5-8	180	RS-Fr.	Redwood City, Calif. (Woodside)

Newcomers

Chris Baloney	6-0	185	Jr.	Houston, Texas (College of the Sequoias)
Justin Tryon	5-9	178	Jr.	Palmdale, Calif. (College of the Canyons)

The 2006 depth at cornerback for ASU may generally lack experience, but an exciting abundance of talent looks to prevail, led by capable veterans, promising underclassmen and highly-regarded transfers that will all help cushion the loss of three graduates at the position from 2005. Also, junior tailback Rudy Burgess will see time at the position during spring drills, as Koetter plans to take advantage of his elite athletic ability. In his first year as ASU's cornerbacks coach is 20-year coaching veteran Al Simmons.

"The cornerback position will feature perhaps the most fierce competition in terms of determining the depth chart," Koetter said. "We have three returning players (Chad Green, Littrele Jones and Keno Walter-White), two redshirt freshmen (Grant Crunkleton and Travis Smith), and two junior college transfers (Chris Baloney and Justin Tryon), all of whom have the potential to compete for serious playing time."

Keno Walter-White returns for his senior season as ASU's top cornerback, after a solid junior year in which he recorded 26 tackles and deflected three passes. A 2005 junior college transfer from Mesa College in San Diego, Walter-White possesses top-level speed, and formidable size at 5-11, 185 pounds. Although he was unable to participate during the majority of spring drills due to injury, Walter-White figures to be prepared to lead the cornerbacks unit for the Sun Devils in the fall.

Junior Chad Green has shown flashes of talent as a reserve during his first two seasons at ASU, and is a top candidate to start opposite Walter-White. Green has played in 20 career games, totaling 15 tackles and three pass breakups, while battling a variety of injuries.

Due to his extraordinary athleticism, junior Rudy Burgess affords Koetter the luxury of experimentation, and Burgess also earned time at cornerback during the spring, in addition to his usual responsibilities as a tailback, wide receiver and a kick returner. Burgess has a history in the defensive backfield, and was originally recruited as a cornerback, where he was the No. 50 cornerback in the nation in 2003, according to Rivals.com. Due to the team's lack of experience at the position, spring drills provided Burgess ample opportunities to showcase his abilities in ways he has not been able to during his Sun Devil career.

"I know what Rudy can do on offense and he knows our system," Koetter said. "When you look at how we have a chance to improve our team the most, I want to get Rudy in the mix to see if he can be a guy that can be a starting cornerback and make our team better."

Entering his junior year, former walk-on Littrele Jones will compete for time at cornerback, after playing in 11 games in 2005. Jones is one of ASU's top special teams members, and the 5-9, 181-pound overachiever has collected four total tackles in 23 career games.

Redshirt freshmen Grant Crunkleton and Travis Smith have made the necessary progress to be prepared to contribute, and will battle for playing time in 2006. Crunkleton, a 5-10, 184-pound Denver Mullen High School product was regarded as the top cornerback in the midlands region by Scout.com and the No. 64 cornerback nationally by Rivals.com as a senior. Smith, hailing from Jefferson High School in Los Angeles, was ranked as the No. 57 cornerback in the nation by Rivals.com as a senior.

Both Crunkleton and Smith have the physical tools to succeed in the Pac-10, and will be expected to contribute when called upon as freshmen in the fall.

Speedy walk-on Ronnie Garrison, a redshirt freshman, adds depth to the secondary.

As part of the team's 2006 recruiting class, ASU signed two mid-year junior college transfers who enrolled for classes in January and began to practice with the team at the start of the spring.

Junior Chris Baloney has joined the team for spring drills after transferring from the College of the Sequoias in Visalia, Calif. Baloney originally signed with ASU as a member of the school's 2005 recruiting class, but due to personal reasons did not join the team for the start of the season. He will have two years of playing eligibility as a Sun Devil beginning in 2006, and was listed as the ninth-best junior college cornerback in the nation by College Football News in 2005.

Arriving on campus for spring practice was junior Justin Tryon, one of the most highly-regarded members of the Sun Devils' signing class of 2006. A pre-and-postseason Junior College All-American as a sophomore in 2005 while playing for the College of the Canyons in Santa Clarita, Calif., Tryon was also ranked as the 18th-best junior college player in the nation by SuperPrep. Tryon joins former junior college teammates safety Troy Nolan and punter Jonathan Johnson as newcomers to ASU in 2006. Tryon is expected to battle for significant playing time in the fall.

"We expect Justin Tryon to be a big part of our defense," Koetter said. "We believe that he has the potential to be a shut-down cornerback against the big time receivers in the Pac-10."

Safety

Free Safety

Josh Barrett	6-2	220	Jr.	Reno, Nev. (Reno)
Rodney Cox	6-1	213	So.	Compton, Calif. (Cathedral)
Angelo Fobbs-Valentino	6-0	197	So.	San Mateo, Calif. (Junipero Serra)

Strong Safety

Zach Catanese	6-2	219	Sr.	Redding, Calif. (Shasta College)
Jeremy Payton	6-1	208	So.	Covina, Calif. (South Hills)
Uriah Marshall	5-11	188	So.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Brophy Prep)
Troy Osborne	5-11	196	Jr.	Peoria, Ariz. (Centennial HS)

Newcomers

Ryan McFoy	6-1	190	Fr.	Chino, Calif. (Chino HS)
Troy Nolan	6-1	196	Jr.	Los Angeles, Calif. (College of the Canyons)

Throughout his five seasons in Tempe, Koetter has coached a series of impact players at the safety position. The 2006 unit boasts tremendous athleticism and talent, and will likely be the main strength of the Sun Devil defense. ASU's defensive scheme formerly employed the services of three safeties at all times, however 2006 will be the third season in which Koetter will predominately utilize the traditional free and strong safety positions. Assistant coach Dan Fidler enters his sixth year coaching ASU's safeties, and is one of only two remaining assistants from Koetter's original ASU staff.

Last season, Koetter and his staff continued its recent trend of locating hidden gems from within the junior college ranks, as former transfer Zach Catanese proved to be one of the most sturdy and tenacious Sun Devil defenders in 2005. Uniquely combining cornerback speed and linebacker size, the 6-2, 219-pound senior was nationally ranked within the top 50 averaging 8.9 tackles per game in 2005, and is the leading returning tackler in the Pac-10 Conference after registering 107 total tackles in his first season at ASU. He also earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors and was one of only five Sun Devils to start all 12 games in 2005. Catanese is the prototypical do-it-all safety, with the toughness to attack the line of scrimmage and the range to drop back into pass coverage when necessary. Due to the departures of several key contributors in both the front seven and the secondary, Catanese will be called upon to be a leader for the defensive backfield and the entire Sun Devil defense.

Slated to start beside Catanese is junior Josh Barrett, who, much like Catanese, combines size with elite speed. Barrett has been timed as the fastest on the ASU roster, and at 220 pounds, he has the size to attack ballcarriers in addition to the speed to run stride-for-stride with receivers. Barrett has recently been healthy for the first time in his career, and Koetter praises him for his development and commitment to becoming a defensive leader for the Sun Devils. Behind Catanese, Barrett is the second leading returning tackler for the Sun Devils, having recorded 37 total stops in 2005. Barrett started two games in 2005 and has four starts for his career, and is first in line to replace Maurice London as the usual starting safety opposite Zach Catanese.

Sophomore Jeremy Payton figures to compete for substantial playing time among the safeties, as well as maintain his role as the team's "nickel" defensive back in passing situations. As a redshirt freshman in 2005, Payton played in 10 games, starting three, and collected 25 total tackles while ranking within the conference's top ten with two forced fumbles. Entering 2006 weighing 10 pounds heavier, Payton remains one of the more versatile Sun Devil defenders, having played wide receiver, cornerback and safety during his young ASU career.

Sophomores Rodney Cox, Angelo Fobbs-Valentino and Uriah Marshall will all add depth at either safety position. Cox missed all but two games in 2005 and received a medical redshirt for the season, but recorded three tackles in 10 games as true freshman in 2004, mainly on special teams. Fobbs-Valentino is a speedy reserve, and Marshall, who moves from cornerback, where he saw limited action last season and was highly recruited out of Brophy High School in Phoenix.

Walk-on junior Troy Osborne will also add depth to the unit.

True freshman Ryan McFoy of Chino (Calif.) High School will join the team in the fall. The brother of Southern California wide receiver Chris McFoy, he was ranked as the No. 44 defensive back in the nation by Rivals.com. As a senior, McFoy collected 70 tackles, five interceptions (two for touchdowns), three forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries.

Mid-year junior college transfer Troy Nolan joined the team for spring drills and will immediately compete for time at safety. Nolan spent the past two seasons playing in the same defensive backfield as fellow spring transfer Justin Tryon at the College of the Canyons in Santa Clarita, Calif., one of the more prominent junior colleges in the nation. Nolan missed the second half of spring drills due to injury, but is expected to be ready for the season's start in the fall.

SPECIAL TEAMS

ASU's 2005 season showcased several instances in which special teams play can significantly alter the outcome of a football game. Overall, assistant head coach Tom Osborne has led one of the finer special teams units in the Pac-10 Conference, as he utilizes the efforts of a wide range of athletes, from offensive and defensive starters to walk-ons and reserves. The 2005 season was a very efficient season for ASU's special teams, as its kickoff coverage and punt and kickoff return units each ranked within the top three in the Pac-10. For the first time in ASU history, the team ranked in the nation's top 10 among punt and kick return units, joining only Texas and Kentucky to do so last season. Led by kick returner Terry Richardson and kicker Jesse Ainsworth, ASU has the needed dynamic to use its special teams play as a momentum-shifting advantage.

"Three out of our four special teams units were outstanding last year, and were among the best in the nation," Koetter said. "We have examined and worked on the difficulties we had in the punting game, and we will have three talented punters in the fall to help improve that area for the 2006 season."

Punt Returns

Terry Richardson	6-1	187	Sr.	Corona, Calif. (Centennial)
Rudy Burgess	5-10	181	Jr.	Edwards, Calif. (Desert)
Nate Kimbrough	6-1	178	So.	Santa Fe Springs, Calif. (Santa Fe)
Chris McGaha	6-1	185	RS-Fr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Moon Valley)
Brandon Smith	6-1	192	RS-Fr.	Bakersfield, Calif. (West)

In 2005, Terry Richardson established himself as one of the most dynamic and dangerous punt return specialists in college football as he had one of the most remarkable seasons in Sun Devil history. Richardson enters 2006 as the Pac-10's leading punt return threat, having earned second-team All-America and first-team All-Pac-10 honors as a kick returner a year ago. Richardson compiled a total of 337 punt return yards last season, the fifth-most in ASU history and the greatest total by a Sun Devil since 1971. "T-Rich" returned two punts for touchdowns in 2005, both of which came in dramatic fashion. The first was an 84-yard dash that broke a first-half scoreless tie against No.1 USC, and the second, an 80-yard strike, enabled the Sun Devils to cap off a 15-point, second-half comeback against rival Arizona. His 84-yarder versus USC was the eighth-longest punt return in school history, and was also the first time a Sun Devil had returned a punt for a touchdown since current St. Louis Ram Shaun McDonald did so in 2000. Richardson's punt return average of 15.3 yards per return in 2005 ranked seventh in the nation, second in the Pac-10 and is the seventh-highest single-season punt return average in ASU history. For his career, Richardson has returned 38 punts for 543 yards, a 14.3-yard-per-return average.

Junior Rudy Burgess and sophomore Nate Kimbrough are capable and experienced backups to Richardson at punt returner. Burgess served as ASU's main punt returner as a freshman in 2004, returning 31 punts for 233 yards on the season. Kimbrough saw limited action at the position as a redshirt freshman last season, gaining 52 yards on four returns.

Redshirt freshmen Chris McGaha and Brandon Smith are highly acclaimed and physically talented candidates for the position, and will both add depth in the fall.

Kickoff Returns

Terry Richardson	6-1	187	Sr.	Corona, Calif. (Centennial)
Rudy Burgess	5-10	181	Jr.	Edwards, Calif. (Desert)
Nate Kimbrough	6-1	178	So.	Santa Fe Springs, Calif. (Santa Fe)
Chris McGaha	6-1	185	RS-Fr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Moon Valley)
Brandon Smith	6-1	192	RS-Fr.	Bakersfield, Calif. (West)

The 2005 season marked the third time under Osborne that ASU finished in the nation's top 25 in kickoff returns (24.6 yards per return). It was also the team's second time ranked among the top 10 in the past five seasons, and the team also ranked second in the Pac-10 in kickoff returns.

In addition to his accomplishments as a deadly punt return specialist, senior Terry Richardson is a dominant kickoff return threat as well. Richardson ranked third in the Pac-10 and 16th in the nation last season, averaging 27.3 yards per kickoff return, the third-highest single-season average in ASU history. Also, his 629 total kick return yards are the third-highest single-season amount in school history, and Richardson accounted for the third-highest total of kickoff return yardage in a single game last season, amounting for 136 yards against No. 14 UCLA.

Junior Rudy Burgess will join Richardson as the second main kick returner for the Sun Devils. In 2005, Burgess returned nine kicks for 170 yards, and has accumulated 497 yards on 23 career kickoff returns, a 21.6-yards-per-return-average.

Sophomore Nate Kimbrough and redshirt freshmen Chris McGaha and Brandon Smith will add depth as kickoff return specialists. Kimbrough returned two kickoffs last season, one of which was a 38-yard burst in the season opener against Temple, his first career game.

Punter

Jesse Ainsworth	6-3	220	Sr.	Thousand Oaks, Calif. (Thousand Oaks)
Chris MacDonald	6-3	218	Jr.	Mesa, Ariz. (Red Mountain)

Newcomers

Jonathan Johnson	6-1	205	Jr.	Simi Valley, Calif. (College of the Canyons)
------------------	-----	-----	-----	---

ASU will have three capable candidates to assume its punting duties in the fall, in the hope to add greater overall consistency to the position. Among the three candidates, ASU has the leg strength, accuracy and mechanics to make punting one of its strengths, and the competition will likely continue into fall practices before a concrete starter is named. The ASU staff is confident it has the personnel to strengthen its punting game, as during each of Koetter's first three seasons in Tempe, Sun Devil punters ranked within the nation's top 27.

Accurate senior Jesse Ainsworth averaged 35.0 yards on 21 punts in 2005, after replacing Chris MacDonald midway through the season. Ainsworth had nine of his punts downed inside the 20-yard line, and had only 24-percent of his punts returned (five of 21), which is the lowest amount of returns allowed by an ASU punter during Koetter's ASU tenure.

Strong-legged junior Chris MacDonald returns to battle to regain his starting position in 2006. A former freshman All-American, MacDonald has the second-highest career gross punting average in ASU history, averaging 42.8 yards per punt. Also, his 42.3-yard average on 33 punts in 2005 is the highest single-season gross punting average in Sun Devil history for players with 25 to 35 punts in a season. However, MacDonald has had more punts blocked (six) than any punter in school history, and had four blocked in 2005, a single-season most for an ASU punter. Koetter praises MacDonald for his work ethic, and how he has diligently worked to improve his mechanics.

Incoming junior Jonathan Johnson will be added to the punting battle in the fall, as one of three Sun Devils in ASU's 2006 recruiting class to transfer from the College of the Canyons in Santa Clarita, Calif. As a sophomore in 2005, Johnson averaged 37.8 yards on 38 punts while also assuming the team's placekicking duties. Johnson's punting mechanics compare to those of former ASU standout and current NFL veteran Nick Murphy, as he has a short stride and releases punts quickly with consistent hang time.

Placekicker

Jesse Ainsworth	6-3	220	Sr.	Thousand Oaks, Calif. (Thousand Oaks)
Mike Nixon	6-2	216	Fr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Sunnyslope HS)

Veteran Jesse Ainsworth returns for his fourth year to assume the placekicking duties for ASU. Ainsworth has quietly established himself as one of the most accomplished kickers in ASU history, entering his senior season ranked fourth on ASU's all-time list with 229 points scored by kicking. Ainsworth also enters 2006 having made 97 consecutive extra points dating back to the 2003 season, a streak that has broken the school record set during the 1981-82 seasons by the finest placekicker in Sun Devil history, Luis Zendejas. In 2005, Ainsworth attempted the fewest field goals (11) of his three seasons, however he enjoyed his most accurate season, successfully converting on 81.8-percent of his field goal attempts, and he was perfect (nine for nine) from within 40 yards. For his career, Ainsworth has made 68.5-percent (37 of 54) of his field goals, and has made 91.2-percent (31 of 34) of his field goal attempts inside 40 yards.

True freshman Mike Nixon will be Ainsworth's main backup. Nixon has prior experience at the position after having served as the kicker for Sunnyslope High School during his prep career.

Long Snapper

Jason Burke	6-2	260	Sr.	Glendale, Ariz. (Mountain Ridge)
Zach Miller	6-5	258	Jr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Desert Vista)
Kyle Caldwell	6-3	261	Sr.	Scottsdale, Ariz. (Saguaro)

Brent Miller	6-5	236	Jr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Desert Vista)
Jason Perkins	6-1	----	RS-So.	Glendale, Ariz. (Air Force)

Reliable senior Jason Burke returns for his fourth year as the Sun Devils' long snapper. The 6-2, 260-pound Glendale (Ariz.) Mountain Ridge graduate has been credited with only one bad snap in his career, and has played in all 36 games throughout his first three seasons at ASU.

Junior tight end/H-back Zach Miller will serve as Burke's main reserve. Miller saw limited action at long snapper in 2005, in relief of a briefly injured Burke. Also, junior tight end/H-back Brent Miller and senior defensive end Kyle Caldwell will also serve as backup long snappers.

Track athlete Jason Perkins joined the team as a walk-on in the spring to battle for a spot as a reserve long snapper. Perkins saw action as a member of Air Force's football team in 2004, and was a two-time Arizona 5A state discus champion while at Glendale Mountain Ridge High School.

Kickoffs

Jesse Ainsworth	6-3	220	Sr.	Thousand Oaks, Calif. (Thousand Oaks)
Mike Nixon	6-2	216	Fr.	Phoenix, Ariz. (Sunnyslope HS)

In the constant battle for field position, ASU's kickoff team has done a remarkable job recently in allowing opponents very little yardage in terms of returns. In 24 games of Pac-10 conference play throughout the past three seasons, ASU's kickoff team has allowed only one return past the 35-yard line, and the members of the team's stingy coverage units pride themselves on their collective tenacity and efficiency.

Senior Jesse Ainsworth has developed a distinct tendency to disallow opponents to return kickoffs, as he forced 46 touchbacks among his 78 total kickoffs in 2005. The 6-3, 220-pounder often times forces the ball deep out of the end zone, eliminating any possibility for an opponent to return the kick.

Linebacker Mike Nixon will also serve as ASU's reserve kickoff specialist.

Holder

Sam Keller	6-4	240	Sr.	Danville, Calif. (San Ramon Valley)
Rudy Carpenter	6-2	204	So.	Westlake, Calif. (Westlake)

Having spent most of his career as one of the unsung heroes among the ASU roster, departed graduate Chad Christensen will be replaced in 2006 as the holder for placekicker Jesse Ainsworth. First in line to fill Christensen's void are senior quarterback Sam Keller and junior punter Chris MacDonald. Sophomore quarterback Rudy Carpenter is also capable to hold for placements.

THE SCHEDULE

For the first time since 2003, ASU will play a 12-game regular season schedule in 2006, featuring match-ups with every Pac-10 Conference opponent. In 2006, The Sun Devils will play six teams who were featured in postseason bowl games last year, four teams who were ranked in the season's final polls, as well as three conference or division champions from 2005.

The season has the earliest beginning since 2002, as on Thursday, August 31, the Sun Devils will host intra-state rival Northern Arizona of Division 1-AA's Big Sky conference. The two teams last met in the 2003 opener, with ASU defeating the Lumberjacks 34-14.

Next to visit Tempe is the 2005 Western Athletic Conference Co-Champion University of Nevada Wolf Pack. Led by longtime head coach Chris Ault, the Wolf Pack finished last season with a 9-3 record and an overtime victory over the University of Central Florida in the Sheraton Hawai'i Bowl. ASU and Nevada have not met on the field since 1947.

On Sept. 16, ASU will travel to Boulder, Colo., for the team's first road game of 2006 to face the two-time defending Big XII North Champion Colorado Buffaloes. The Buffaloes had a 7-6 record in 2005 and competed in the Champs Sports Bowl. This is the first meeting on the gridiron between the two prominent programs, however an unusual degree of familiarity will exist in this match-up, as first-year Colorado head coach Dan Hawkins was a former assistant under Koetter at Boise State, and Hawkins' offensive coordinator Mark Helfrich was ASU's quarterbacks coach during the 2001-05 seasons.

ASU will open Pac-10 Conference play in Berkeley, Calif., when the Sun Devils travel to face the University of California Golden Bears on Sept. 23. The Sun Devils did not face California in 2005, and the Golden Bears finished the season tied with ASU for fourth in the Pac-10, and posted an 8-4 overall record and were ranked 25th in the nation in the season's final poll.

The Sun Devils will return home to battle the University of Oregon on Sept. 30, in ASU's Hall of Fame Game. Guided by Mike Bellotti, the longest-tenured head coach in the Pac-10, Oregon finished the 2005 season ranked No. 12 in the nation with a 10-2 record and appeared in the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl against Oklahoma. ASU has won three of the last four contests against the Ducks.

ASU will enjoy its only bye week of the regular season following the Oregon game, and will travel to Los Angeles on Oct. 14 to play the three-time defending Pac-10 champion University of Southern California Trojans. USC has showcased the past two Heisman Trophy winners, won two of the last three national championships and has appeared in four consecutive BCS bowl games.

ASU's 2006 homecoming game will be played on Oct. 21 against the Stanford Cardinal.

Following homecoming, the Sun Devils will travel to Seattle to face the University of Washington, then to Corvallis, Ore., to battle Oregon State University. ASU will return home to face the Washington State University Cougars on November 11.

Sun Devil seniors will bid farewell to Tempe on November 18 when ASU faces the UCLA Bruins on Senior Day. The Bruins finished the 2005 season ranked 13th in the nation, and concluded their season with a 10-2 record and defeated Northwestern in the Vitalis Sun Bowl.

ASU will conclude the 2006 regular season in Tucson against archrival University of Arizona Wildcats. This will be the 80th annual meeting between the intra-state rivals, with the winner receiving the rights to the coveted Territorial Cup, the oldest rivalry trophy in college football. Koetter has a 3-2 record against the Wildcats in his five seasons at ASU, including last year's 23-20, comeback victory in Tempe. Due to the 12-game regular season schedule, ASU will not enjoy its usual bye week prior to its final regular season game. Also, the game will be played on a Saturday, different from the recent Friday afternoon scheduling of the rivalry game.

- One of the premier tight ends in the nation was recently named a 2006 Playboy Magazine All-American
- Should be a leading preseason candidate for the Mackey Award, presented annually to the nation's top tight end
- Had a solid sophomore season to follow his record-setting freshman year.
- Has started all 22 games he has played.
- In only two seasons at ASU, he has caught 94 passes for 1,028 yards and 10 touchdowns. Over that two-year span, he ranks first in the nation among tight ends in receptions, and second in yards and touchdown catches
- Has caught a career-best 10 passes twice, at USC in October, 2004 and at Washington State in November, 2005.
- Has caught at least one pass in 20 of 22 career games, and has had five or more receptions in 10 games through his first two seasons.
- Was nicknamed "The Truth" by his teammates for living up to the hype that tabbed him the No. 1 tight end prospect in the nation coming out of high school.

2005 Season

Started 10 games ... Earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors ... Earned second-team Academic All-Pac-10 honors, posting a 3.75 GPA ... TURNOVER TALE

ASU finished third in the Pac-10 in turnover margin this season (0.58). In its last 89 games, if ASU wins or breaks even in the turnover battle, the Sun Devils are 49-7. In that same span, ASU is 4-29 when it loses the turnover battle. During that stretch, the unexpected has happened 10 times: in 1999 against Washington State (win) and Oregon (loss); in 2001 vs. Oregon State (win); 2002 vs. Eastern Washington (win) and Kansas State (loss); in 2003 vs. Utah State (win), at Iowa (loss), USC (loss) and at UCLA (loss); and in 2005 vs. LSU (loss).
