LAST YEAR IN PAC-10 MEN'S GOLF

FAIRFAX, Calif. - In what proved to be the most dramatic round of the entire tournament, the 2008 Pac-10 Men's Golf Championship belongs to Arizona State after a playoff round win over USC. Creighton Honeck of Arizona took the Individual Pac-10 title after beating Kevin Chappell of UCLA, also in a one-hole playoff round.

USC and Arizona State battled all day, with the two schools going back and forth for first place and finally tying at 3-under par. One playoff hole on the 18th was all it took for the Sun Devils (354-361-356-364) to win their first Pac-10 men's golf title since 2000.

In an interesting Pac-10 connection, Arizona State head coach Randy Lein was the USC men's golf coach when current Trojan coach Chris Zambri was there as a player. During the award ceremony, Coach Lein acknowledged the play of ASU's only senior, Phil Telliard, noting that he was happy Telliard was able to end his collegiate career on a high point.

The individual leader competition was equally heated coming down the stretch with Honeck and Chappell tied at 3-under. In the sudden death playoff round on the 10th hole, Chappell teed off first and made par, then Honeck sank a birdie to win it. As a team, Arizona ended the tournament in sixth place after posting a 4-under par, the best outing of the day.

GOLFERS TO WATCH

USC's Matthew Giles holds the No. 1 ranking in the nation according to Golfweek. The Aussie shot a career-low round of 63 in April at the U.S. Intercollegiate where he tied for fourth. With the second-lowest adjusted stroke average in the nation at 71.07, Giles has shot 17 rounds at par or better this season. The USC sophomore is also a contender for the Ben Hogan Award, which is presented annually to the best collegiate golfer in the nation.

Stanford sophomore Steve Ziegler won his first collegiate career individual title in February at the USC/Ashworth Collegiate Invitational. Ziegler carded a 9-under 204 after shooting a career-low tying round of 65 on the last day of competition. Ziegler was named the Golf World Player of the Week and the Pac-10 Golfer of the Month following his first-place performance. The sophomore is currently ranked ninth in the nation according to Golfweek.

Winning a Washington school-record fourth individual title this season, Husky Nick Taylor was named the Golf World Player of the Week for April 13-19 with his victory at the U.S. Intercollegiate. The junior shot a career-low 63 in the final round to secure the top spot after starting the day five back from the leader. Taylor, who ranked 12th by Golfweek, was also named the Pac-10 Golfer of the month for both November and March. Along with USC's Giles, Taylor is a finalist for the Ben Hogan Award.

UCLA's Erik Flores won co-medalist honors at the U.S. Collegiate Championships, the second individual victory of his career, in the beginning of April. Flores shot a season-low 65 in the first round, one stroke off his career-low of 64, to secure the victory. The senior holds a 72.69 scoring average through 26 rounds, with 7 of those rounds shot under par. Flores is ranked 15th nationally by Golfweek.
